

Thalidomide Firm Pays Record Award

VANCOUVER (CP) — The largest single thalidomide judgment ever against a drug company has been settled for $985,000 in favor of a 14-year-old Kelowna girl.

B.C. Supreme Court Chief Justice Nathan Nemetz approved the settlement, in U.S. funds, against the drug manufacturing company Richardson-Merrell.

Names of the girl and her foster mother are being withheld.

The settlement also has been approved by public trustee C. W. Footle, who will administer the money.

It is estimated the girl will receive about $750,000 in Canadian funds after all legal fees and other costs have been paid.

According to lawyer Thomas Griffiths, who brought the action against the drug company, it is the largest individual thalidomide judgment yet awarded.

He told the court that the girl is mentally retarded as the result of her mother's taking of the drug and will never be able to manage her affairs.

He said the girl's foster mother is better suited to continue as her guardian than an institution.

"I believe this foster mother has made every sacrifice and has done everything possible in her means for the child's happiness."

He said this continued loving care would provide as comfortable and useful a future as possible.

Although the actual settlement was made in an Ohio court, it had to be approved here because an infant was involved.

Thalidomide was used widely as a tranquilizer between 1958 and 1961 and caused a number of serious defects to children of pregnant women who took the drug.

Rationing Ready

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A contingency plan for gasoline rationing in Canada has been drawn up, is now completed, and can be put into force if and when it is required, Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie told the Commons Monday.

Soon after the embargo in 1973 work was started on the rationing plan for Canada. It was prepared in the event that there would be insufficient supplies to meet all needs as a result of the embargo or for other reasons.

When the Emergency Supplies Allocation board completed its work a year ago the work on the contingency plan was set aside. It has now been completed, said the minister.

"It requires an act of the House of Commons to put it into force," he said.

Multiple Slayings Fear, Body Found

CHILLIWACK (CP)—RCMP found a body in the Fraser River just before noon, and the search for more bodies continues in what appears to be a multiple slaying Monday night.

A citizen in Vancouver, 65 miles west of here, reported to police that he had found a pickup truck which was reported missing from the scene of an earlier shooting incident near here.

The truck was found in the Pacific Centre parkade and was removed to the Vancouver crime lab for inspection. Police said five area youths were near the river Monday night when a man fired a rifle shot at them. One youth ran and told police he heard more shots behind him. When police reached the scene neither the youths nor the truck they had used were to be found.

Police identified three missing youths as Evert Den Hertog, 18, John Den Hertog, 16, brothers from Rosedale near here, and Bert Menger, 19, of Clearbrook. Menger's brother Ed was the youth who fled the scene and notified police about the shooting.

The name of a missing 15-year-old Rosedale girl was not released. RCMP said shell casings from a 30-30-calibre rifle were found at the scene where the attack took place.

Menger told police that he and four friends were gathered on the banks of the Fraser River about 10 miles east of here around 9:45 p.m. when a man came up from behind them and began firing a rifle.

He told police he was able to flee and heard several more shots as he ran from the area.

RCMP Sergeant Roy Clark, at the scene of the shootings this morning, said that from the evidence police were finding it appeared the teenagers were slain and their bodies dumped into the Fraser. "We could see there was some dragging going on . . ."

Manitoba Twister Kills 2

ROSA, Man. (CP) — Two people died and two others were critically injured Monday night when a tornado ripped a farmhouse off its foundations near this southern Manitoba community.

RCMP identified the dead as Mike Klem, 72, and his 58-year-old wife Katie. Their daughter Joanne Grenier, 22, and her 14-month-old daughter Tara were in critical condition today in St. Boniface General Hospital in Winnipeg.

The twister touched down about 8 p.m. CDT in an area several miles long and perhaps a mile wide about 50 miles south of Winnipeg.

Weather officials said the winds could have reached a peak force of 200 miles an hour.

The tornado lifted the Klems' house and deposited it several hundred yards away.

There was extensive damage to other property in the area, including houses and farm buildings. The tornado killed livestock, felled trees and hydro poles, flattened crops and peeled asphalt off Highway 59 near St. Malo and Rosa.

No other serious injuries were reported, and there was no early estimate of the amount of damage.

Firearms Bill Passes

OTTAWA (CP) — Three years after it was first introduced, legislation to control the purchase and use of firearms received final approval Monday in the Commons.

The bill passed 95 to 40 with 30 Progressive Conservatives, eight New Democrats and two Social Crediters opposing the government. Max Saltzman (NDP — Waterloo-Cambridge) backed the government.

The bill now needs Senate approval and royal assent to become law.

Justice Minister Ron Basford made a last-minute concession to the vociferous opponents of the legislation by opening the final debate with a promise to delay proclamation of regulations on the purchase of guns until mid-1978.

Basford told the Commons the delay would permit extensive discussion with the provinces and other interested groups.

The legislation also toughens police power to wiretap telephones.

It extends to 60 days from the current 30 days the length of time police can tap a line with court permission and increases to three years from 90 days the time given to the police to notify people of taps.

Eldon Woolliams, the Conservative justice critic, called on Basford to stop his "false and misleading" statements that the legislation will end the killing of policemen.

"When they say this bill will stop murder, stop shooting, stop robbery with violence, they are misleading the people of Canada. Make no mistake about that."

HAIR-RAISING PROSPECT . . .

Manchester Guardian

LONDON — Career women in modern Britain — under the added stress of looking after husbands and children — are growing hairy chests and hairy stomachs. They sometimes become lustful as well, just like the tired businessman of contemporary myth.

These startling truths are attributed to Ivor Mills, professor of medicine at Cambridge University and a respectable endocrinologist of 56 who rates 22 lines in Who's Who.

The findings are sensational, says the current issue of Women's Own magazine which carries the story. But the magazine does wonder if Mills might not be an unconscious male chauvinist, trying to scare women back to the kitchen sink.

Mills finds that strain on a woman's brain is related to hormonal changes. These include excess male hormone production.

He has begun to see patients in their 20s who have suddenly started growing excess facial hair. "It can be very distressing. Some women have to shave every day, others start growing hair on their breasts and abdomens."

Sometimes they develop aggressive tendencies and high sex drives.

With high hormone overproduction, voices deepen: "We have had a few singers who can't sing soprano any more."

Mills cites a case study of one, Margaret, a dynamic schoolteacher, who had to shave daily. Her husband was happy with her high sex drive, but she found it hard to conceive.

Eventually she succeeded, but when she went back to work she became irritable and hairy all over again.

A number of contradictions are mentioned. Sometimes, the findings show a decrease in male hormone production, leading to loss of libido and depression.

Mills advocates that the main solution is for women to insist that their husbands help more in the home.

It is an impeccably feminist conclusion. Women's Own leaves open the question of whether highly-stressed men suffer hormonal disturbances, such as becoming bald, twitchy, squeaky-voiced and impotent.

Mills was said by the magazine to be holidaying incommunicado in France, no doubt following his own wise prescription: "If a woman shows signs of stress, such as lack of sleep, irritability or compulsion to work, she should curtail her hours and allow herself some more rest, too."

It is vital that women recognize their limits before it's too late.

Bawlf Attacks Editorial

Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf said Monday he will consider legal action if there are any further "wholly unjustified attacks upon my probity and honor" in the media.

Bawlf was reacting specifically to an editorial in the Victoria Times July 14 which suggested that Attorney-General Garth Gardom should lay a charge against Bawlf and two other Social Credit members to allow the courts to determine whether they are sitting in the house illegally.

Times editor Barbara McLintock said today the editorial did not reflect in any way on the honor or integrity of Mr. Bawlf, or either of the other MLAs involved.

"It was made quite clear that none of the three had any intention of wrong-doing in the matter and it seems to me that has been accepted by everyone involved in the case," she said. "I don't really understand what Mr. Bawlf is so upset about."

Opposition members suggested last week that Bawlf, Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt and Social MLA George Kerster (Coquitlam) may be sitting illegally because of money paid to them last year to cover some expenses while participating in a government-sponsored housing committee.

The Constitution Act says MLAs can accept no money from the government other than their annual stipends.

Bawlf said the "smoke from the crossfire" between government and opposition on the issue has almost blotted out his personal position.

Bawlf said he was completely unaware of the manner in which the department of housing dealt with the expenses of the committee.

"Not one cent has ever gone into my pocket by reason of my membership on the committee," he said.

Municipal Affairs and Housing Minister Hugh Curtis told the legislature last week that expense money was paid out for the MLAs by mistake.

He confirmed that no money was paid personally to Bawlf, saying the money that was paid out went directly to hotels or other facilities involved.

Bawlf said the editorial in the Times demonstrated "a complete lack of understanding on the part of that newspaper, both of the law and the facts."

"In its self-righteous sensational commentary not only does it miss the point, but it smears my character."

Debate on the issue in the house cannot be prevented, Bawlf said.

"It does not follow, however, that I shall stand idly by whilst others outside the house gratuitously defame me."

"I have nothing to fear. I have nothing to hide. I am well content to abide by the decision of the House or, should matters take that course, a decision in the courts," he said.

Bawlf said he would consider legal action if what he considers attacks continue.

Kerster Asking for Probe Into ICBC Document Leaks

Socialist MLA George Kerster said Monday he will ask the attorney-general to investigate whether the NDP violated the confidentiality of Insurance Corp. of B.C. file documents.

"I think the public should be told," Kerster said late Monday after a day of questioning by opposition members about his involvement in the settlement of an ICBC claim with his old company, Surrey Dodge.

"It looks to me as though someone has violated that section and I think there should be a complete investigation," he said.

Dennis Cocke (NDP — New Westminster) earlier in the day tabled two internal ICBC documents which indicate a claim to Surrey Dodge has been paid out by ICBC even though the company had not paid its $450 insurance premium.

Education Minister Pat McGeer, in charge of ICBC, said however, that although the premium had not been paid to the insurance agent involved, the money had been paid directly to ICBC.

He said Cocke's information came from a "stolen document" which turned out to be wrong.

The NDP has charged that Kerster improperly intervened in the settling of the claim with his old company.

Kerster headed the firm at the time of the incident which resulted in the claim, but stopped his involvement with it when elected in December, 1975.

McGeer accused Cocke of deluding the legislature and of smearing Kerster by referring to the document which was based on incomplete, incorrect information.

The minister said it was unlawful to take such a confidential document from ICBC and Cocke is misleading the public.

McGeer tabled documents last week which contained a report of an investigation into allegations against Kerster.

East Stifles In Heatwave

Times News Services

A "heat storm" fried most of the eastern two-thirds of Canada and the U.S. today.

Residents of New York city broiled in their seventh consecutive day of 33 degree (90 F) heat.

Monday the mercury there reached 38 (100 F), the hottest in 11 years.

Water Commissioner Charles Samowitz reimposed a water shortage alert and Consolidated Edison appealed to customers to conserve power. Officials worried the power drain could result in another massive blackout like last week's 26-hour ordeal.

In Ontario the current heat wave has killed thousands of turkeys and chickens, and farmers fear there will be more losses this week.

Turkey farmer Walter Metzger of Elmira, near Kitchener, said Monday that about five per cent of turkey flocks and 90 per cent of farmers' profits have been lost.

He said chicken farmers have lost 10 to 12 per cent of their flocks, and that both chicken and turkey farmers could be working for nothing this year.

Egg production probably will drop sharply in 10 days to two weeks, he added.

Bennett Forbids Family Hirings

Premier Bill Bennett Monday issued a directive forbidding his cabinet colleagues from hiring any members of their immediate families.

The directive will mean the firing of Michael McKelvey, executive assistant to his father-in-law, Transport and Communications Minister Jack Davis.

Opposition members pounded their desks in approval as Bennett read his memo in the legislature.

He said later he defines immediate family as mother, father, brother, sister, son, daughter or anyone married to them.

The premier said the memo does not affect his own executive assistant, Tony Tozer, whose brother is married to the premier's sister.

Neither does the memo affect Don Larsen, executive assistant to Highways and Public Works Minister Alex

Fraser. Larsen was once married to Fraser's foster daughter.

Opposition members complained last week that Davis' hiring of his son-in-law in the post of executive assistant was "nepotism, patronage and borders on corruption."

Davis confirmed he had hired McKelvey during his summer vacation from law school at Queen's University in Kingston, Ont.

"I am asking each minister to make sure that this problem or this situation does not exist in their ministry," the premier said.

Bennett said Tozer, his own assistant, is related through marriage to his sister, but not to him.

"And if my sister follows me into this job as the premier of this province," then she would probably terminate him," he said.

Davis was not available for comment.

Rhodesia Election Kills Peace Package

Times News Services

LONDON — Diplomatic officials say Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith's bombshell decision to hold new parliamentary elections means the death of an Anglo-American plan for a peaceful shift to black majority rule.

The officials also fear Smith's announcement Monday could plunge Rhodesia into a bloody civil war between the Smith regime and moderate blacks on the one hand and black nationalist guerrillas on the other.

The Anglo-American proposal for black rule was developed by British Foreign Secretary David Owen with the backing of U.S. Secretary of State Cyrus Vance. Owen flies to Washington Friday for two days of talks with Vance.

Smith's dismissal of parliament and call for new elections was regarded as a bid to win popular support for his plan to settle the black rule dispute by negotiating an agreement with moderate blacks.

British officials said they also believe Smith's action was intended to wreck the Owen-Vance plan because it called for negotiations with more militant blacks, including leaders of the Patriotic Front guerrilla movement.

Smith's move appears to have been well timed, coming when the Anglo-American initiative looked as though it had run out of steam.

Britain and the United States have proposed that Patriotic Front guerrillas be enlisted into the white-ruled Rhodesian army to guarantee law and order. Smith flatly refused.

Patriotic Front leader Joshua Nkomo has insisted blacks must take control of the government before elections are held at all — a demand Smith also rejected.

African nationalists and white opposition parties were strongly critical after Smith announced the general election.

WAGES UP 11%

OTTAWA (CP) — Wages and salary incomes rose by 11 per cent to $8.66 billion during March from $7.81 billion in the comparable month last year, Statistics Canada reported Monday.

For the first three months of 1977, total wage and salary income was $25.6 billion. Comparable year-ago figures are not available because they are being revised.

New figures for the 1973-76 years show total wage and salary incomes revised to $82.9 billion for 1973, $74.72 billion for 1974, $86.97 billion for 1975 and $99.67 billion for 1976.

Paish Licence Studied

VANCOUVER (CP) — Don Robinson, acting director of the provincial fish and wildlife branch, said Monday his own judgment will determine if outfitter and guide Howard Paish is granted another licence.

Paish, former executive director of the B.C. Wildlife Federation and now an environmental consultant, was convicted and fined $600 in 1976 of infractions of the wildlife regulations.

Last February he was also found guilty on charges of cruelty to animals and was placed on probation for 15 months and ordered to write a special report on the care and treatment of horses.

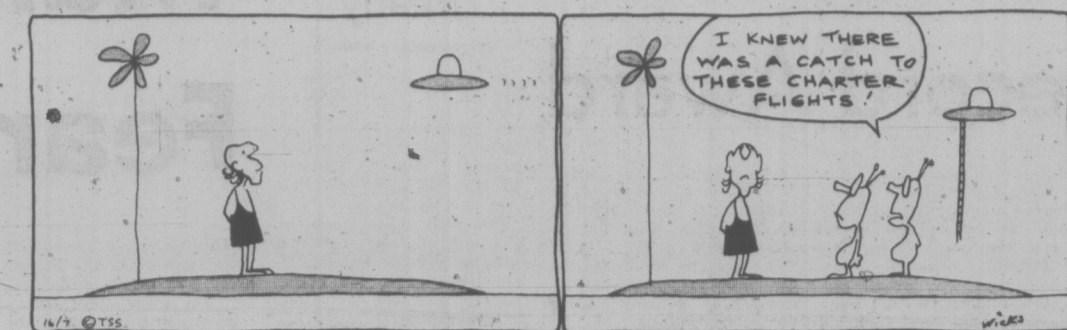

The offences involved activities connected with Paish's former guiding business in what is now, but was not then, Spatsizi Plateau Wilderness Park.

Robinson said he has written to Paish to advise him also that as of March 31, 1978, he will give serious consideration to cancelling Paish's guide-outfitter's certificate.

The certificate gives Paish rights to certain areas as a guide, Robinson said.

Robinson said Paish has the right to a judicial appeal in county court if he is not satisfied with the decision of the hearing.

Committee Sees Norris

MLA SEEKING ICBC PROBE

The legislature's public accounts committee found out today why B.C. Rail vice-president Mac Norris failed to show as requested at a meeting last month, but it appears nothing will be done about it.

Norris appeared before the committee this morning with a seven-member delegation from the government-owned railway to explain his absence from the controversial meeting June 28.

At that meeting, only the four NDP members of the committee showed up and opposition members have since charged the Socreds deliberately tried to thwart the committee in its questioning of the BCR witnesses.

Norris said this morning he and his delegation flew to Victoria the day before the meeting June 28 and about 9:30 p.m. met Economic Development Minister Don Phillips.

Phillips told him then the committee secretary George Kerster (SC-Coquiham) had requested the next day's public accounts committee meeting be called off because there would not be enough Social Credit members present to make a quorum.

Norris said Phillips did not advise him not to attend the meeting, but did advise him to check with Kerster the next morning.

Norris got the same information from Kerster at about 8:15 the next morning, he said.

"He did not tell me not to attend, he told me there would not be a quorum," Norris said.

Norris' explanation this morning brought little response from committee members although Norris himself admitted that under the circumstances he should probably have attempted to contact chairman Dave Stupich (NDP-Nanaimo), rather than Kerster.

was made to pay the claim to the insured the amount of the outstanding premium should have been deducted and paid to the agent," B. F. Pearson of ICBC reported.

Kerster, backed by Premier Bill Bennett, said that he was just doing his job as an MLA when he intervened with ICBC to get the claim paid.

Earlier in the day Kerster defended himself against previous opposition charges that the Surrey Dodge claim was settled after receiving a letter from Surrey Dodge saying it was having trouble with the matter, he said. Murray Hogan, of the complaint department, said he also had received a letter about the case and would look into it, Kerster said.

Asked about statements by a senior official in the claims department that he had spoken to Kerster about the matter, the MLA said the official "must have misunderstood" because he never talked to him about the Surrey Dodge claim. He said he thinks the man probably talked to his brother who still was involved with the company after Kerster had left it.

Kerster said he went himself to the complaint department with the case, even though Surrey Dodge was his brother's company and his former company because "I wanted to be open about the whole thing." He could have worked through another MLA to get the situation rectified, he said, "but that would have been sneaking around and I didn't want to do that."

The 6½-hour meeting with Bortnick, he said, dealt with another claim involving a constituent and friend of Kerster. The person had not been given a decision on the claim for several months, he said, and he was determined some decision should be made.

He said he made it clear he would not leave ICBC until the case was decided; this took 6½ hours because the file had to be brought to the main ICBC office from Surrey. While he was waiting for the file, the ICBC officials "gave me a crash course in insurance," he said.

At one point one of the officials told him, "Oh, all right, we'll settle the damn thing," he said, but he refused, saying the case should be decided on its merits.

Heatwave Stifles East

with little relief at night. It was so unmercifully hot in the Mojave desert Monday that 19 rugged United States marines participating in war games were overcome had to be evacuated by helicopter to Camp Pendleton in southern California. The temperature reached 47 degrees — 126 F — at one point.

It was so hot along the railway tracks near Paintsville, Ky., that the rails expanded and 16 cars of a 110-car freight train jumped the tracks. No one was injured. Temperatures had hovered near 38.

And the nagging heat became more unbearable as the U.S. Water Service announced that in most places there will be no letup for most of the week.

"It seems like it's either bust or dry here," said Myron Krenzin, head of the Kansas Wheat Commission. "It was dry until the end of May, and then we got some rain right when we wanted dry weather for the wheat harvest."

"We got too much rain — six and seven inches at a time. We lost 15 to 16 million bushels of wheat ... but the weather is dry again now. The drought isn't over."

Things were no better in Alabama.

"Almost every county in the state has been declared a disaster area," said J. D. Hays of the Alabama Farm Bureau Federation. "And it is just that — a disaster."

California alone rang a note of optimism in the blistering drought — But only because initial estimates were unduly pessimistic.

At one point, state officials were predicting crop losses of $1.4 billion. This week, they were expected to downgrade that to a gross farm income loss between $300 million and $800 million, with an overall loss of $1.5 billion to the state's economy.

the weather

The circulation pattern over B.C. remains unchanged with a deep trough of cold air hanging over the province. This unstable air resulted in widespread showers on Monday with isolated thunder-showers. In what could be called a cold snap, record minimum temperatures for July 18 were recorded at Vancouver, Abbotsford, Tofino, Lytton and Comox. Record low daytime temperatures were set at Quesnel and Prince George where the temperature was an October-like 11 degrees. The centre of this cool air is now over the province and so a slow warming trend will begin by Wednesday as the air is modified by increasing amounts of sunshine.

VW Unveils 60mpg Rabbit

DETROIT (AP) — Volkswagen unveiled on Monday an experimental diesel Rabbit which the firm says averages 60 miles to the gallon of fuel, meets two U.S. anti-pollution standards and protects occupants in 40 m.p.h. crashes.

The experimental Rabbit, developed under a contract with the U.S. transportation department, is en route to the Environmental Protection Agency's laboratory in Ann Arbor, Mich., for testing.

The transport department paid $45,000 for the car, which Volkswagen said actually cost $50,000 to develop.

Volkswagen engineers say the vehicle brings together advanced technology for safety, fuel economy, exhaust emission control and performance to demonstrate that it is possible to develop such a vehicle.

But mass producing the vehicle is another matter, says James McLernon, head of VW Manufacturing Corp. of America.

"We have not tackled any of the major problems associated with mass production," said McLernon, whose company will begin assembling conventional Rabbits in Pennsylvania next year.

McLernon, who refused to speculate on how much a mass-produced version of the car might cost consumers, said it would take at least three years to develop machinery needed to build the car.

The car is powered by a four-cylinder diesel engine with a five-speed manual transmission. It gets 69 miles on one gallon of fuel on the highway and 55 miles on one gallon in the city.

The 89.7-cubic-inch engine is aided by a turbocharger to improve performance. As a result, the car accelerates from zero to 60 m.p.h. in 13.5 seconds.

The car, which weighs 2,072 pounds, has special steel reinforcing beams in the frame and extensive padding in the interior compartment to protect occupants in crashes into a barrier of speeds up to 40 m.p.h.

An additional safety feature is an automatic safety belt which wraps around a motorist as he or she gets into the car.

The car also meets U.S. federal standards contemplated for two pollutants—carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons—without using a catalytic converter.

B.C., FEDS MEETING OVER BCR

The board of directors of B.C. Rail will meet federal officials in Vancouver Wednesday to discuss long-term solutions to problems facing its Railwest rail car manufacturing plant in Squamish, Premier Bennett said Monday.

"The meeting follows an offer from the federal government to provide 'technical and consultative resources' to prevent closure of the plant and the loss of 260 jobs.

Railwest, which is owned by the B.C. government, has not been able to win any contracts for construction of rail cars, and is to close Aug. 14 once it completes the last order from its parent company, B.C. Rail.

The federal offer was accepted in a telegram sent Monday to Senator Ray Perrault, government leader in the Senate, by Economic Development Minister Don Phillips, the minister responsible for B.C. Rail.

Phillips said that the offer had been considered at an emergency meeting of the B.C. Rail board of directors, held in Prince George.

Phillips refused to disclose what proposals he will bring to the meeting and could not indicate how much Ottawa would spend to help save the plant.

Porn Seizure Warning

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pornographic magazines and newspapers will be seized from newsstand shelves beginning next week, Mayor Jack Volrich said Monday.

He gave retailers, distributors and publishers a week to "clean up their act" but he didn't say which publications would be singled out.

"I'm giving fair warning to these places to clean up their act and remove the offensive magazines in the next week," Volrich said.

"Otherwise, I'll be asking our police to take action and magazines considered to be offensive under the Criminal Code will be confiscated."

Volrich said the Vancouver Star, a locally-produced sex newspaper which appears twice a month, is a potential target but wasn't specific on others.

He said prosecution would involve magazines "completely concerned with sex" and when charges are laid, the magazines can be seized as evidence.

Volrich said many publications are "absolutely gross in what they show" and are sold on open stands within the reach of children.

He said he was also concerned about advertisements in the Vancouver Star which offer house calls for body massages. He said this is an attempt to get around a city bylaw controlling body rub parlors.

Asked how retailers are expected to know what magazines should be removed from their shelves, the mayor said: "I don't think any person should have difficulty determining what is offensive."

Spaniard Ends 38 Hidden Years

MADRID (UPI) — A 77-year-old Spaniard has ended 38 years of hiding in the cellar of his home from the forces of Generalissimo Francisco Franco.

Protasio Montalvo Martin came out of seclusion Sunday and quickly became a national celebrity.

Montalvo was the Socialist mayor of the town of Cercedilla before the end of the 1936-39 Spanish civil war. The community of 2,500 lies in the mountains northwest of Madrid.

In an interview on national television, he said, "I did not come out because I was afraid of reprisals" from Franco's victorious army.

Although he spent most of his time in the cellar, Montalvo said he came up into the house occasionally to help his wife when no one was nearby.

"I watched the rabbits and the birds and I could tell when someone was coming and I would jump back down in the cellar."

Montalvo's four children also knew of their father's plight. One of his daughters-in-law said, "Although my husband knew that his father was in the cellar, it was a great happiness to be able to see him in the street."

Montalvo's grandchildren did not even know he existed.

He said he was grateful to King Juan Carlos for providing conditions under which he could come out of hiding.

Today would have marked exactly 38 years since Montalvo moved into the cellar.

Echoes of Quang Case In IRA Man's Appeal

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Immigration Minister Bud Cullen does not want another "clunker" of an immigration case like that of the South Vietnam General Dang Van Quang, who is still residing in Montreal.

It is to avoid having another such case that James Kennedy, now being held in maximum security in Vancouver is to be deported.

Bill Clarke, (PC-Vancouver Quadra) told the Commons on Monday that Kennedy has been held in maximum security since May 27 or nearly two months, on the suspicion that he is an Irish terrorist.

"He has been held although no criminal charges have been laid in Canada and no public hearing has been held here and no extradition proceedings have been commenced," Clarke said.

He asked for what reason the deportation order was issued and whether an appeal to the Federal Court already lodged, would be heard before the deportation order was executed.

Immigration Minister Cullen

len said he had been informed that a person known as James Kennedy was ordered deported on July 14, for being a person who had been convicted of crimes involving moral turpitude.

"When will Kennedy be deported and to what country — or will he become another General Quang?" asked Clarke.

"No, I think one clunker is enough," retorted Cullen.

Kennedy, meanwhile is seeking refugee status in Canada to avoid being "wiped out" by militants in his native Ireland, his lawyer said Monday in Vancouver.

John Taylor said that because of news reports overseas, Irish militants "will have difficulty identifying Kennedy with either group (Protestants or Catholics)."

"Certain persons who have found themselves in similar situations in Ireland have been wiped out," he said.

The refugee move is Kennedy's third legal manoeuvre to fight the deportation order by a special immigration inquiry which established Kennedy's identity as James Joseph McCann, a man wanted for terrorist activities in Northern Ireland and Germany.

CZ Profit, Sales Rise

VANCOUVER (CP) — Crown Zellerbach Canada Ltd. Monday reported six-month profits of $12.2 million or $1.50 a share, up from $9.7 million or $1.20 during the same period last year. This is an increase of 26 per cent.

Sales were $210.8 million, up from $190.8 million in 1976.

Bob Rogers, Crown Zellerbach chairman and chief executive officer, said there was a notable improvement in export lumber sales, especially in the United States where housing starts have rebounded sharply.

He said offsetting factors were a continued weakness in plywood markets and profit margin pressures in domestic merchandising activities.

Alaska Pipeline Pumping Again

Times News Services
ANCHORAGE — Pushed first by gravity and then by pumps, oil began moving through the trans-Alaska pipeline again, 10 days after an explosion destroyed Pump Station No. 9 and shut down the $7.7-billion line.

"Things are moving along in reasonable shape," said Harry Mowell, vice-president for operations of Alyeska Pipeline Service Co. "It looks like we're on to stay. About 6 o'clock (8 p.m. PDT) Monday we opened all the valves."

Mowell said that "opening the valves on the downside of the Brooks Range" gave the oil a shove and then the pumps were turned on to keep it going. The highest point on the pipeline — the 4,800-foot Attigun Pass — is in the Brooks Range.

Meanwhile, the five oil companies which own the Trans-

Alaska pipeline are taking the U.S. government to court over a technicality which the companies say may cost them millions of dollars.

The dispute is about an Interstate Commerce Commission decision setting the price of Alaska pipeline oil at $4.20 per barrel, rather than allowing the oil companies to charge between $6.04 and $6.44 per barrel.

Although the oil companies agree the ICC has jurisdiction in the case, they contend the commission should have held public hearings before ordering the lower rates.

"At issue is whether they can shoot from the hip without a hearing," Exxon attorney Richard Flynn said Monday in Houston. "Nobody questions their power to set the rates."

A hearing was scheduled today on the suit.

Pension Ends UIC Judge Decides

OTTAWA (CP) — Elderly persons are not entitled to unemployment insurance benefits once they start receiving payments from the Canada Pension Plan or the Quebec Pension Plan, a federal court judge has ruled.

The Unemployment Insurance Commission said Monday the decision by Mr. Justice Jean-Eudes Dube will affect about 375 persons.

Parliament passed a special bill earlier this year authorizing payments of unemployment insurance benefits to persons 65 and older, who were wrongfully cut off Jan. 1, 1976.

But the commission stopped payments when the elderly persons started receiving Canada Pension Plan or Quebec Pension Plan benefits.

About 85 persons appealed the commission's decision to stop benefit payments when they started getting pension money and that appeal was upheld by the board of referees.

But the commission then successfully appealed the board of referees' ruling to a federal court umpire.

Too Much Trouble

Some time within the next week or two, it appears likely, the B.C. legislature will set up a special committee from among its members to investigate the allegations that three Social Crediters were in breach of the Constitution Act and hence are disqualified from sitting in the House. It will be the next step — but not, unfortunately, the last one — in a controversy that seems to have generated 10 times as much trouble as it is worth.

From the original allegations that the three had breached the act when their expenses were paid for them for travelling they did on a semi-official housing committee, the mess has now spread to include NDP charges of cover-up and whitewash and vague threats by one of the three — Recreation Minister Sam Bawlf — of future legal action if editorials and comments about the situation impugn his honor or integrity. Somehow it all seems a bit out of proportion.

No one, not even the NDP, is impugning Bawlf's honor or suggesting the slightest of ill motive on the part of him or the two other committee members, Jim Hewitt and George Kerster. If the act was breached, it was certainly entirely inadvertent on the part of all three, and everyone involved seems to accept that. It is difficult to understand why Bawlf is so excited about the whole thing.

The NDP's cover-up charges stem from the fact that Attorney-General Garde Gardom is using a House committee to investigate the matter rather than the courts. The opposition logic is that the government is going that route because it is sure of having a majority on the committee and, hence, deciding the outcome of the case.

However, Gardom argues that legally he has no option but to send the problem to a House committee for decision. The legalities of the matter are immensely complicated but it appears the attorney-general has a good case — a good enough case, at any rate, that charges of cover-up seem overdramatic and exaggerated.

Now that the allegations have been made, no one has any choice but to stumble ahead until some sort of conclusion has been reached. (One would hope that part of any conclusion would be rewriting of the Constitution Act to make it both clearer and more realistic in these areas.)

But while the stumbling is going on, everyone involved should remember that the original problem was an administrative oversight, not a major scandal, and try to treat it as such. The public would much rather their MLAs devoted most of their energy to the serious problems facing the province rather than to the legal intricacies of some hotel bills from Fort St. John.

Good Used Tories . . .

The news from Alberta is that there is strong pressure on Conservative MPs there to jump ship and join the Liberals. Apparently it has become a badge of courage to have run the gauntlet and stayed true blue. "Have you been asked?" is the question put most often these days in the Tory caucus rooms.

Paul Yewchuk, the PC member for Athabasca, said he'd been asked but refused because Liberal policies have been "destructive to Canada."

A Liberal party spokesman says this sort of shopping around goes on all the time, but we gather it is particularly intense right now, with the feverish speculation concerning a fall election.

A Tory, even of the Albertan variety for whom nomination as candidates for parliament has usually been the real contest and election day a mere formality, can no longer be sure of being re-elected in the safest of seats.

But if they're wavering, Conservative MPs should make up their minds soon. They should be reminded that their trade-in value is depreciating fast. Jack Horner was enlightened on the road to Crowfoot one day, joined the Liberals and next month was sworn into the cabinet as minister without portfolio.

Number two was Jacques Lavoie, a bit of a giant-killer who had knocked off Liberal mandarin Pierre Juneau in a Montreal byelection last year. He switched into the Grit caucus and has not been heard from since. Not even a parliamentary secretaryship was he offered.

With the latest report from Dr. George Gallup (the equivalent of the Blue Book in the used car business) Tories' liquid assets have shrunk somewhat. But there is still a market for good used Tories, even as the Liberals prepare to unveil the new 1978 line in fall showrooms.

Do Not Disturb

Something's still right with the world when an entire city falls head over heels in love with a baby Beluga whale. Visitors to Vancouver these days find the locals talk of little else but the cetacean blessed event at the aquarium.

When something takes precedence in Vancouver over the usual topics of conversation — the mountains, the beaches, the weather — you know there's been a truly important happening.

Simon Fraser University graduate students and aquarium staff are maintaining a round-the-clock vigil at the whale pool, cameras recording every nuzzle. Though the little guy hasn't yet been named, Vancouverites know his mother, Kavana, and aunt and uncle Sanaq and Lugosi better than their neighbors.

Federal election talk? The provincial legislature snarling and hissing? Please do not disturb Vancouver. Baby Beluga is sleeping.

A Gallup to the finish.

CLAUDE ADAMS

Hoax Upsets White House

WASHINGTON — A bogus Save Amy Carter advertisement in a local magazine has touched off a testy debate about Washington's sense of humor, bad taste and the exploitation of White House children.

The hoax, appearing in the current issue of Washingtonian magazine and featuring a picture of the president's daughter carrying a cat, has raised a total of $1.44 for a fictitious charity called Overprivileged Kids, Inc.

The White House is not amused. Nor is the postal service. Nor is the Democratic National Committee, whose address appears in a clip-out box in the ad.

Disservice to Poor

Least amused is the Save the Children Federation, which called the parody "a disservice to the desperately poor."

The contentious ad is an obvious steal of the federation's own advertising. Its large type reads: "You can help save Amy . . . or you can turn the page."

"Look at those eyes again," it continues. "Look at that face. You can make a big difference in the life of Amy. Send whatever you can afford."

Save the Children ads normally show desperate, hungry-looking children, and they challenge the public's apathy by inviting the reader to "turn the page."

The man responsible for the hoax ad, Washingtonian editor Jack Limpert, suggested that this city doesn't know how to take a joke anymore. He claims the White House over-reacted. And he insists that White House children in the new administration are being exploited.

"Even Jimmy Carter exploits her to some degree — like the way he had Amy in his room when the television crews came in at the Democratic national convention."

Amy's enrolment at a public elementary school here, and her propensity for falling asleep on the table at state dinners, have guaranteed her wide press coverage, but the White House has never grumbled about it before.

The president's press secretary, Jody Powell, snapped recently: "Who reads Washingtonian anyway?"

And Rosalynn Carter's press aide said Limpert, despite his defence of high satire, was overestimating his readership because they were sending in money.

Among the letters received was one that included a money order for a dollar, a Washington child who sent in 42 cents, and a Tulsa, Okla., boy who mailed in two pennies taped on a card.

His accompanying note read: "If all the school kids would send a few pennies, you could go to scout camp this summer."

J. D. Nelson, administrator of the Democratic National Committee, said the ad was in poor taste because it satirized a sincere charity.

It's not the first time the flashy Washingtonian has stepped into controversial waters. During the Nixon administration, it prepared a piece on White House chief Henry Haller, and sent a copy for clearance to then-president Nixon.

Not First Time

A number of sentences, including one that Pat Nixon was fond of martinis, were scratched out, but Limpert printed the original article anyway, while indicating which parts Nixon wanted censored.

And some months ago, the magazine created a storm with a cover story on the city's black population. The cover showed an ice cream cone, with one scoop of vanilla topped by three of chocolate. Washington's population is 75 per cent black.

Limpert is unfazed by all the fuss. In fact, for next month's issue, he plans to launch a Save the White House Sense of Humor Fund. "And this time we'll use Nixon press secretary Ron Ziegler's address," he says.

Enlightenment

The question of whether intelligent life and other civilizations exist in outer space is frequently debated in the press.

The human mind and five senses only enable man to compare one thing with another — heat with cold, light with dark, etc. This is the relative field which Einstein talked about. Likewise, he can only compare one radio sound with another, but is not able to give any meaning to the sounds from outer space except louder and softer, etc. Just as in his own life which appears to be ultimately meaningless, so will the radio sounds be meaningless.

However, with his sixth sense, his intuition, man can become aware of that which eternally is and that he is. Being incomparable, it cannot be known by the mind. This is freedom from bondage; this is enlightenment.—H. S. Thuillier, 2424 Beach Drive.

Folkfest Praised

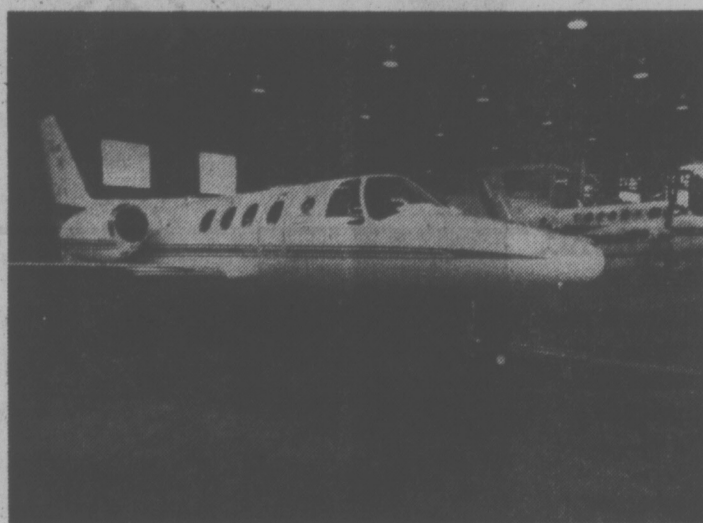

I write to express my respect and admiration. A short while ago, members of the Greater Victoria Inter-Cultural Association put on a brilliant display of truly Canadian spirit. For a week in Centennial Square, we enjoyed Folkfest '77. The energy, the music, the dance and the food, the range and the choice of cultural experience was really extraordinary. It was not the first Folk Festival, but it was the best yet, and thousands of people enjoyed it.

The members of the Inter-Cultural Association deserve tremendous praise for their organization, and for this uniquely pro-Canadian program. They have earned the thanks and respect of all our people. I only hope the association realizes what a splendid job it has done. We've never seen anything as good. — Charles Barber, MLA, Victoria.

Patients' Thanks

We would like to extend our sincere thanks to everyone that contributed to our garage sale that was held on June 11, and also the fantastic support of everyone on that day. Funds raised such as these are put to good use in helping purchase items for the renal unit at the Royal Jubilee Hospital. — Mrs. Sylvia McCormack, President, Vancouver Island Kidney Patients Association.

Cessna Citation jet in B.C. government hangar—$42 a flight?

Flying MLAs

I should like to comment about the Canadian Press article of July 13 concerning flights for B.C. MLAs on government airplanes. Recent news has shown that Canada's airlines are having financial problems. Some are losing millions of dollars. All governments are spending large sums of money to convince us that we must conserve precious fuel.

To me, this situation is a great example of the Trudeau-type arrogance shown by many government officials. We must save fuel — they can waste it. We must support Air Canada, with our business and our taxes — they can add to airline problems by running a private government service in competition with them. We must pay the true cost of transportation — they can show ridiculous, false costs for luxury private jet flights and use our money to do it!

If our representatives can't lower themselves to sit with us on airplanes, why should they expect us to vote for them? When are Canadian taxpayers going to stand up and say enough is enough? Public servants should be setting the best possible examples for Canadians — not the worst! — J. Murphy, Victoria.

More Staff Needed

On June 22, 1977, Jack Kehoe, of the board of directors, B.C. Civil Liberties Association, was interviewed on CBC radio. Kehoe's discussion focussed on the problem caused by a critical shortage of human rights officers, who administer the Human Rights Code. The result in Vancouver is that Kehoe's organization is swamped with cases which should rightfully be dealt with by the human rights branch. He explained that 50 per cent of the complaints pursued under the code must, of necessity, be assigned to industrial relations officers (IRO). These people are not trained as human rights officers (HRO); they are not aware of the relevant legislation, not sympathetic to the goals of the human rights branch and are unhappy to do this work, feeling it's not part of their job. The result of their mishandling of the cases has been a further avalanche of complaints to the B.C. Civil Liberties Association.

Kehoe approached the branch and urged them to hire more HROs, whose training and competence he praised, but was told that budgetary restrictions precluded this.

The situation on Vancouver Island is as bad or worse than that in Vancouver for the same reasons. For all of the island there is one only human rights officer. Victoria community groups such as Status of Women Action Group and Business and Professional Women receive complaints and a separate human rights committee has been formed in response.

One case we are currently working with will illustrate the problem. A woman in Victoria applied for a senior position in keeping with her training and experience with one of the major department stores. She was told, in effect, no matter how well qualified, a woman would never be hired for this position. Since merit alone is the criterion acceptable by law for hiring, the woman placed a complaint with the human rights branch. The branch responded immediately and an IRO was assigned to the case. The woman heard nothing from the IRO for NINE months. After that lengthy delay she was informed the IRO had found no basis for her complaint.

Subsequently she learned that another woman had applied for the same job, was refused on the same basis and had also filed a complaint with the branch. This fact surely casts doubt on the conclusion of the IRO. This woman is not giving up, even though she has been forced by necessity to accept a job quite below her expectations in terms of experience, ability and salary. In this case the discriminatory offense appears blatant even to the untrained observer.

The fact that the woman did not hear from the IRO for nine months, and then received a completely unsatisfactory settlement indicates that the IROs ought not to be handling human rights cases. Their job is different, their orientation different, they don't have time to handle the cases and presumably resent having to do it.

This whole situation has the effect of negating the intent of the Human Rights Code. The Human Rights Code of B.C. is far-reaching — perhaps the most advanced in Canada in terms of ability to protect human rights. Any piece of legislation not enforced, however, is useless.

For example, new legislation creating the office of ombudsman provides for the ombudsman to go directly to the legislature and demand more staff as the need arises. This is recognition of the fact that legislation can be undermined or subverted if the mechanics of administration are not smoothly implemented.

Given the far-reaching quality of the legislation, a keen, active and competent human rights staff expanded to a size to cope with the workload, a supportive minister and government, B.C. could be a Canadian leader, an example to be copied, and the citizens assured of protection of their basic human rights. We urge the minister, Mr. Allan Williams, and the government to rectify the situation immediately. Release the IROs to cope with their own workload and expand the staff of the human rights branch to meet the needs of the citizens of B.C.—Diane Grimmer, Victoria Human Rights Committee, 950 St. Patrick.

Out of Proportion

The Salt Spring Island Chamber of Commerce wishes to take issue with, and express its disapproval of, recent articles written by your Mr. Mike Hunter concerning the so-called "scandal" existing on Salt Spring Island.

Salt Spring is a popular tourist attraction for many Vancouver Island and Victoria residents, and Mr. Hunter's graphic description of slime in our harbour and rats evident at low tide damages our image and appeal to potential visitors as well as being totally out of proportion.

It would appear that you have allowed your newspaper to be used by one individual resident of Salt Spring to put forward a personal grudge towards another individual resident. In truth, Mr. Valcourt faces no harsher restrictions than those levied by a cumbersome bureaucratic system on any individual involved in property zoning on Salt Spring. By publishing Mr. Hunter's article, you have, in our opinion, lowered your newspaper to the level of sensationalism and at the same time inflicted serious damage to our prime industry of tourism.

We believe that the Times and Mr. Hunter owe an apology to the residents of Salt Spring Island, and we would appreciate an equal amount of space devoted to the promotion of the scenic beauty and quality facilities that exist on our island. —Steve Nelson, President, Salt Spring Island Chamber of Commerce.

(Ed. Note: The Times appreciates the concern of the Chamber of Commerce for accuracy and proportion in coverage. To that end, we note that the reporter's name was Mike Hughes, not Mike Hunter, that the word "scandal" was never used in the stories, and that the views of many groups on Salt Spring, not just the Valcourts, were reported. We note also that the chamber does not actually deny any of the facts Hughes reported, including those about rats and slime.)

Comments Wanted

I am a political science student at the University of British Columbia and this fall I will be attending a conference in Toronto called Alternatives Canada. Students from across the country will be attending to discuss various issues, among them the English-French question, regionalism, and possible alternatives to the present Canadian situation.

My task is to write a paper on B.C.'s view of Canada. I would like this presentation to reflect as accurately as possible the views of the people of British Columbia. The best way to accomplish this seems simply to ask: What do you think? I would appreciate any comments that you, as a British Columbian, might have on this question. Thank you. — K. Teghtsoonian, 23719 West 8th Avenue, Vancouver.

Vietnam Refugees 'Forgotten People'

The 145,000 Indochinese refugees who were taken in by the United States after the collapse of American-backed governments in South Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia have almost become another of this country's forgotten minorities. Although they are measurably better off than the 85,000 who are trapped unwanted in camps in Thailand and the several thousand "boat cases" that are scattered around Asia, the majority are struggling in low-paying jobs or are unemployed. And now, with the voluntary agencies that have been responsible for resettlement rapidly running out of money and the federal program that has sustained them due to expire at the end of September, the State Department, as reported last week, is asking that 15,000 more Indochinese be allowed to enter.

If they arrive, what is in store for them? According to a report to Congress last month by the department of health, education and welfare's refugee Task Force, 52,219, or 36 per cent, of those who are here already were receiving some sort of federal cash assistance as of May 1. But the report also notes that the rate of drift to welfare, only 1.3 per cent for two months, appears to be slowing, and cites a recent survey that showed 86.4 per cent of refugee households were receiving some income from full or part-time jobs.

Peripheral Jobs

Still underemployment and low pay were found to be widespread. More than 23 per cent of those working were making less than $100 a week and more than 90 per cent were making less than $200. As David E. Lewis, regional director of migration and refugee services for the United States Catholic Conference in the Middle West and South-Central states, has put it: "Fortunately the economy has been steadily moving up a bit. They're out on the periphery of the existence level and if the economy takes a dip, then they're in trouble, because they're taking a lot of jobs that are not taken by Americans."

The case of Nguyen Van Huong, who once ran the Military Transportation Terminal Office at Tan Son Nhut Air Base in Saigon, can stand for many. Now living in Silver Spring, Md., the best job he has been able to get is as an assistant cook in a restaurant. His wife is also working there, but they are finding it hard to support themselves and their four children on the $700 to $800 a month in their combined take-home pay.

Recently, federal officials, resettlement workers and some of the Indochinese themselves have expressed a growing concern over what they see as a widespread increase in emotional disturbances among the refugees, especially severe depression. It is said to have led to several suicides. The troubles are often attributed to the separation of traditionally close-knit families, to the traumatic circumstances under which many left their homelands, with little time for consideration of the consequences, to their difficulties in mastering English and an alien culture — and to the serious economic troubles many are encountering.

Some who know the refugees are convinced that many more than the 500 or so who have ofagreed, have wound up in California, mostly in the south, around Los Angeles and San Diego. Texas may have as many as 20,000, Mr. Lewis said, because many refugees have been attracted not only by the climate but also by the thriving economies of Houston and Dallas-Fort Worth. He also estimated that New Orleans has about 5,000, drawn there by the climate and a strong Roman Catholic resettlement agency. Washington, D.C., is thought to have about 10,000, many of whom worked for the United States in Southeast Asia and have clung to the hope that some day they will get a government job. Everyone also agrees that after the bitter cold of last winter, thousands have left the frigid north.

Nearly every place they've gone, the Vietnamese, Cambodians and Laotians, who seem to feel they have little more in common with each other than they do with the Americans, have tended to cluster together in their own national groups, forming mini-ghettos, sometimes marked by their own stores and restaurants. Not has there been much integration into American society, in part because of the language and cultural barriers, that make such a melding difficult initially for many new groups, and in part perhaps because many Americans have not especially welcomed the human reminders of an Asian war they would prefer to forget.

Parolee Status

As for the future, much may depend on what Congress does about extending the act that provides them special assistance. The voluntary agencies have said that the Office of Management and Budget and the White House are prepared to ask President Carter to press for an extension of the program, which has already cost $500 million. But there is opposition in Capitol Hill, that includes Senator Edward M. Kennedy, chairman of the Judiciary Subcommittee on Refugees. He and others do not want to see the Southeast Asian program grow into a fixture, such as the Cuban program. It still hasn't been phased out.

Senator Kennedy is sponsoring a bill that would remove the refugees who had been here two years from parolee status and allow them to become permanent resident aliens. That would make them eligible for citizenship eventually, and allow them to take government jobs not now open to them. He contends that this would be more useful than continued direct assistance, by giving them "a greater sense of belonging in our society."

And that, perhaps, is what most refugees have really wanted.

officially applied to the United Nations High Commissioner on Refugees for repatriation would seek to go home should relations between the United States and their countries be normalized. Others just as conversant with the refugee community insist that most, given the choice, would remain here if they were allowed to bring relatives left behind in Southeast Asia to this country.

Meanwhile, the refugees have contented themselves with moving about the United States with a rapidity that has bewildered most people responsible for their resettlement. Plugged into the remarkable grapevines that exist among each national group, they await only a word from a relative or friend to travel halfway across the country for a more hospitable climate or a chance at a better job.

Since there is apparently no way to keep accurate track of where they've all gone, resettlement workers confess that they can only guess. The largest number, perhaps as many as 40,000, it is generally a population of more than two million while Bintan—which is twice the size—has no more than 65,000 inhabitants.

However, when the 16 players from Singapore—six of them women—stepped off the ferry at Tanjungpinang, the miniature capital of the Rho archipelago, they soon found themselves glancing down a little shyly at their casual slacks and jeans. For they were greeted by a welcoming crowd of smiling and hand-shaking Indonesian government notables as well as tennis association officials, and whisked off to immense air-conditioned VIP rooms in a splendid old colonial guest-house.

The welcome was followed by an opening ceremony in the reception hall of Government House, attended by the governor, the local military commander, the chief of police, and leading sports dignitaries. There were warm speeches of welcome, with much emphasis on the close brotherly affection the islanders felt for Singapore, and gifts were formally presented—tokens and club flags—as official photographers assiduously recorded the event.

The astonished Singaporeans replied in kind, half-noting at the same time the marked feminine contribution to the occasion, the way in which the local admiral's wife appeared to play the part of hostess, the added courtesy accorded to the women members of the visiting team, two of whom were to be driven almost everywhere they went by the chief of police himself.

The driving included a tour of the sun-baked little town, and the surprises multiplied—the surrounding hills dotted with tennis courts, the admiring townspeople who had known the visitors were coming for two weeks past, the school children who besieged them for autographs, the amiable and obviously sincere hospitality and goodwill.

On the next day the contest began. But while the men played elsewhere, the women played in a "centre court" laid out in front of Government House, flanked on one side by a stand for officials, and on the other by an enthusiastic and sporting crowd — "the whole town", as one guest put it—who cheered everyone on regardless of nationality.

For this was "tennis island," where a simple match becomes a popular fete and the inhabitants are seemingly determined to create the Wimbledon of South-East Asia. The small town of Tanjungpinang boasts five clubs, and since in Indonesia work stops at two in the afternoon, keen civil servants can devote the rest of the day to their game.

But their wives are even keener—tough, all-weather amazons who shrug off the dehydrating sun and the tropical rains to practice day after day, conscious of the approbation of the people, even that their performance on the court adds to the standing of their husbands in the hierarchy.

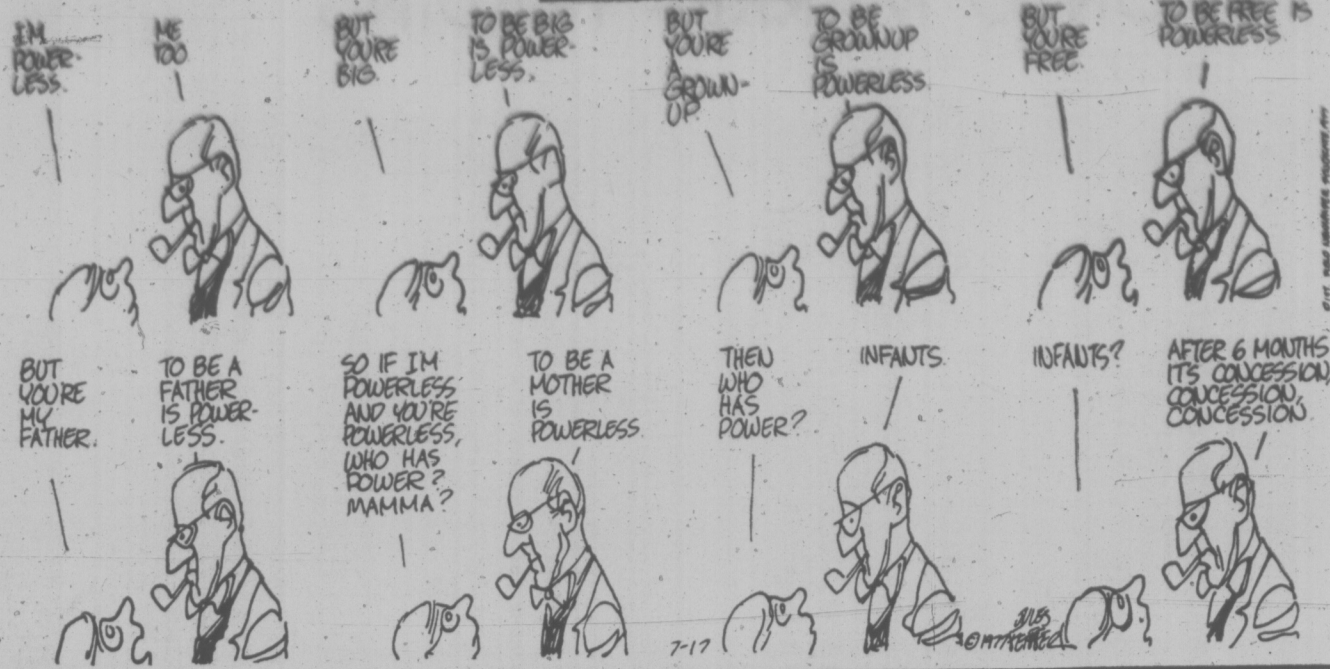

The Singaporeans found themselves facing not languid if lissom girls, but hard-hitting matrons of 35 to 45, including a mother of eight with the nastiest service of them all, veteran tacticians who could play from eight to noon and from three to sunset in equatorial heat and never let that formidable backhand flag.

There were no third, deciding sets, for this was a friendly encounter. The Singaporeans took a beating with good grace, and the Indonesians applauded them for it, begged them to stay another day (Monday? Work? The objection was derisory). There was much laughter and a long parting at the harbour, while the ferry to Singapore waited for the last handshake, the last token to be bestowed (Singapore girls literally gave the shirts off their backs, still soaked in sweat, when they had nothing else to offer and the Indonesians admired the YMCA logo on them.)

It had been a minor triumph for diplomacy and sportsmanship, a weekend of peculiar magic. "It was like a dream," one Singaporean on her return, a little dazed by all the fairness and the friendliness. It was a sad comment that she could not say it was like life.

Feminists Join Battle Against Pornography

By MOLLY IVINS
New York Times

Conservative women's groups that have traditionally been in the forefront of America's anti-smut campaign may be startled by their newest allies — women who believe in free love, sex education, abortion on demand and equal rights for homosexuals. Feminists have begun to discuss, analyze and organize against the dehumanization of women, as demonstrated by new and violent trends in pornography. Some leaders of the feminist movement who, in the past, have opposed anything that viewed as a curtailment of civil liberties, are now arguing for the elimination of the new pornography on the grounds that it is more important to fight the degradation of women than to protect the civil rights of the publishers involved.

A meeting of New York feminists was held last week at the home of Susan Brownmiller, author of Against Our Will: Men, Women and Rape. Among those in attendance were Leah Fritz, author; Gloria Steinem, editor of Ms. Magazine; Robin Morgan, author of Going Too Far; Adrienne Rich, poet; Lois Gould, columnist; Grace Paley, short-story writer; and Shere Hite, who compiled The Hite Report. Though these women are all New Yorkers, their views tend to have a national impact.

There is nothing new in the feminists' distaste for pornography. Even soft-core porn, the Gibson girls without clothes once featured in Esquire magazine, has long been considered insulting by feminists.

But the kind of pornography that provoked the meeting is considered by the group to be worse than insulting. Record album covers now frequently feature brutalized, mutilated or murdered women, women in chains, women screaming in pain. Fashion magazines include picture layouts of women being beaten up by men.

"This is meant to humiliate and degrade and it will encourage violence against women," said Robin Morgan.

"The human body is not obscene," said Gloria Steinem. "But this is not sex, it is violence. It encourages acceptance of the idea that violence is a legitimate part of sexuality."

The tactics and strategies of the fledgling group are still under discussion. Those interviewed explained that they could not speak for the entire group, which is tentatively being called the Women's Anti-Defamation League.

"One thing we obviously don't want to do is tangle head-on with the civil libertarians," said Brownmiller. "We are not going to smash any presses or try to stop anyone from printing."

... under counter

One legislative remedy the women seem inclined to seek is a city ordinance limiting display of pornography. Some women are already boycotting local newsstands to protest the pornography that greets them when they come in to buy Ladies Home Journal or Scientific American. But feminists concede that as long as the store across the street is displaying Hustler, no stand can afford the competitive disadvantage.

"There are a number of things that can be done about pornography short of eliminating it, and one is to keep it inside, under a counter," said Steinem. "If someone wants to see it, he should have to go into a store or theatre and ask; it now assaults everyone who walks on the streets. The legal precedent lies in the nuisance principle. A man who exposes himself in public isn't protected by the First Amendment, he's a nuisance."

Adrienne Rich, emphasizing the educational campaign that is needed, said that consumer action can be effective in some cases — such as when an advertisement for a Rolling Stones album was recalled after protests.

The feminists seemed aware of the possibility of setting off a backlash. Feminist struggles for sex education and freedom of sexual preference could fall victim to an over-zealous anti-porn crusade. For example, the New York legislature, in the wording of a recently-passed bill intended to stop child pornography, managed to include legitimate sex education books.

The thought of feminists involved in anti-pornography efforts brings to mind the possibility of some peculiar alliances. One envisions the National Organization for Women and the Daughters of The American Revolution marching shoulder to shoulder in the war against porn.

This matter of alliances has already produced differences in the group. Some of the women are prepared at least to contemplate making alliances with traditional anti-smut groups. But other activists cannot see co-operating with, for example, the Catholic church, which opposes abortion even to save the life of the mother, or with Anita Bryant, who believes homosexuals are suffering from a curable disease.

DID YOU LOSE SOME MONEY?

VANCOUVER — An elderly woman with "snow white hair and a Canadian accent" lost $200 in a Portland, Ore., sportswear store says store manager Iona Kipp, but she can't find the woman.

Mrs. Kipp, manager of Lerner Shops in North Portland, says in a letter to a local newspaper that the woman lost $200 in Canadian funds on the night of July 13.

"She returned to our shop the next day to ask about the money but we hadn't seen it," Mrs. Kipp said.

The woman can claim the money by identifying the money envelope when contacting Lerner Shops, 1222 Lloyd Centre, Portland, Ore., 97232, phone (503) 282-6338.

Liz Changes Her Mind On Hospital

GABONE, Botswana — Elizabeth Taylor has changed her mind about spending $350,000 on a Botswana hospital in memory of happy days with Richard Burton, the health ministry says.

A statement said the actress has instead agreed to provide $43,000 to build two health clinics.

Miss Taylor and Burton put the tiny settlement of Kasane, in northern Botswana, on the map when they re-married there in October, 1975.

The ministry said Miss Taylor promised at that time to give $350,000 to upgrade Kasane Hospital to commemorate her happy memories with Burton on their honeymoon in the Botswana bush.

But the statement said Miss Taylor, whose second marriage to Burton ended in divorce, changed her mind about six weeks ago.

The reason given, said ministry planning officer Murray Kam, was that her tax status with the U.S. government changed when she married former U.S. Navy secretary John Warner at the end of 1976, and she could no longer afford the larger amount.

Kiwi Planning A L-o-n-g Run

VANCOUVER — A 42-year-old New Zealand man is set to begin the longest run ever attempted — from Anchorage, Alaska to Halifax.

The trek totals 5,166 miles, but Max Telford of Auckland would have faced an even longer route if the Russian government had approved his request last year to run across the Soviet Union.

Telford will reach a total of 100,000 miles in his 19 years of running shortly after trotting out of Anchorage on Saturday. His only ambition is to be recognized as the greatest long distance runner of all time.

The fitness fanatic who teaches physical education has already run 250 miles from Kuala Lumpur to Singapore and 186 miles around the Hawaiian island of Maui this year.

Last year his feats included a 120-mile crossing of Death Valley, Calif. He made a later round-trip run in temperatures between 46 and 66 degrees Celsius on the pavement, causing so much blistering and swelling of his feet that his shoes had to be cut off after the run.

The present record for a long-distance run is 3,800 miles, which Telford plans to break by a wide margin.

"That means about 100 days should do it," said Telford, a soft-spoken 136 pounds of muscle.

POSTER PROPOSAL

NEW YORK — What does an advertising executive do when he wants to get married but can't find the right mate? He advertises.

And that's what Michael Block has done.

The 35-year-old Block is paying $2,600 a month for up to three months for eight billboards next to clocks strategically placed in Manhattan subway stations.

The signs sport a photo of the bearded Block wearing a suit and his message:

"Singles Bars are Great If

You Want to Stay Single. U don't. And I want a lady who doesn't either. So, if you'd like to meet and get together, just send a picture and a short note to: Michael c/o GPO Box 2331, New York City, N.Y. 10017."

He works as an executive like to meet and get together, just send a picture and a short note to: Michael c/o GPO Box 2331, New York City, N.Y. 10017."

He works as an executive for a firm which specializes in mass-transit advertising — a firm he doesn't care to name.

Woman's Hospital Bed-In a Galling Protest

NORTHAMPTON, England (AP)—Housewife Rita Ward, who took over a hospital bed to demand immediate removal of her painful gallstones, snuggled down between the sheets Monday and announced: "I've won—they're going to operate."

Mrs. Ward startled nurses and patients Saturday by walking into a ward at Northampton General Hospital, climbing into an empty bed, and refusing to move.

She has suffered from the stones for 18 months and had been told she would have to wait at least a year for an operation under Britain's free national health service.

She decided she could not wait.

"Now they've told me I can have the operation later this week," Mrs. Ward said. "I know I jumped the queue and other people need operations too, but I was in too much pain to wait. If other people are in as much pain as I was and they can find a spare bed, then I say good luck to them."

A hospital spokesman refused to confirm that Mrs. Ward is to be operated on this week.

"Doctors are examining her, and a decision will be made later whether to operate," he said.

A spokesman for the Patients' Association, a pressure group for improved health care, said: "We applaud her individual action. No one should have to wait as long as she did. It's absolutely monstrous—but if everyone did the same thing it would be chaotic."

Mrs. Ward said she was told she could have the operation privately right away, but it would cost her the equivalent of $850.

"And I couldn't afford that," she said.

Freddie's Death Accident: Mom

LOS ANGELES — Freddie Prinze's mother doesn't think her son meant to kill himself when he shot himself to death last January, despite an official verdict of suicide.

Maria Pruetzel told a news conference Monday her son often joked about shooting himself and often put a gun to his head and pulled the trigger. But, she said, he always had the safety catch on and she believes he was unaware the catch was off the night he killed himself.

She also said she knew her son's death was accidental because of "circumstances that have recently been brought to my attention." She did not elaborate.

The 22-year-old comedian died of massive brain damage at UCLA Medical Centre Jan. 29, 33 hours after he shot himself at the West Los Angeles hotel room where he had lived since his separation from his wife.

Mrs. Pruetzel, who said she would write a book about her son, was accompanied at her conference by her lawyer Martin Friedlander, who said there may be legal action involving at least $500,000 worth of life insurance that excludes benefits in the event of suicide.

TARZAN BUSTED

DES MOINES — "Tarzan" was arrested Monday.

Police said a man clad only in a muddy loincloth and answering to that name was taken into custody for assaulting three officers who had arrested him for attempted burglary.

The officers found him clinging to a flatbed truck behind a discount store and became suspicious.

UVic Trails Developed

A network of paths to give joggers and walkers and bird-watchers access to the wooded areas at the University of Victoria is being developed inside the 380-acre campus.

Rex Murfitt, superintendent of grounds, said the more than two miles of trails will be for pedestrian use only — motorcycles and horses will not be allowed.

"What we have tried to do is constitute a walking trail around the campus through woodland and fields so people can appreciate the different types of trees," he said.

And the paths will make it easier for birdwatchers to gain access to the nesting grounds of 80 species of birds. Under an $8,000 federal Canada Works grant, five men will work for 10 weeks upgrading old paths and developing new ones.

Murfitt stressed the public is welcome to visit the developed areas of the campus including the University Gardens which contain hundreds of species of rhododendrons.

Accused Truck Thief Suffered Amnesia Attacks, Court Told

A man charged with theft of a truck in January, 1976, was found not guilty in Victoria county court Monday because he had amnesia at the time.

Judge M. L. T. Drake ordered Peter Donald Moulton, 23, of Victoria, to be held in custody at the Eric Martin Institute of Psychiatry in the care of Dr. Lawrence Pader until "the pleasure of the lieutenant-governor in council" may be carried out.

Moulton testified he had no recollection of the theft the afternoon of Jan. 27, 1976, and expert testimony indicated that owing to illness the accused man was insane in the legal sense.

Pader told the court the accused man had suffered similarly prior to that time, but since taking treatment in the months after the offence he had shown marked improvement and had suffered only one brief spell of amnesia up to the present.

The judge said he had no option but to make the order for confinement, according to provision of the Criminal Code, although he could use discretion and he specified Eric Martin Institute to prevent Moulton from being sent to Riverview mental hospital.

The Criminal Code requires that persons found not guilty by virtue of insanity at the time of an offence must be held at the pleasure of the provincial cabinet.

Defence counsel Nick Lott asked Moulton what he recalled of the period late January and early February of last year, and Moulton said there was "a lot of it I don't remember" after being "hit on the head and waking up in the hospital."

He subsequently received another blow to the head and the next thing he could recollect clearly was getting a job as a gas station attendant at Royal Roads, where on the first day of work his boss told him the police were looking for him.

When he found he had the keys to a truck parked on the service station lot, he called a salesman at Peter Pollen Ford, which had reported a truck stolen, then contacted police.

The doctor said he treated Moulton over a period of time and was of the opinion that he suffered from dissociative fugue brought on by stress, anxiety or blows to the head, a diagnosis on which three other physicians agreed.

Moulton responded to the attacks by fleeing, usually in a vehicle belonging to someone else, or by running. Pader said the problem approached that of a dual personality disorder.

Before Scientologists Sue U.S. The Judge For $7.8 Million Damages

An 18-year-old Alert Bay resident who was let out of prison on the work release program pleaded guilty to mischief causing wilful damage Monday in Victoria provincial court and, as a result will have to serve some of the indefinite period of a previous sentence.

James Speck admitted kicking in a window of a building owned by the Royal Bank of Canada at 717 Fort Street on Sunday at about 2:45 a.m.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan told Judge Fred Green that Speck was convicted of criminal negligence causing death in Alert Bay on Nov. 3, and received a sentence of nine months definite and 12 months indeterminate. Speck only had about four months left, court was told, and was released from the Pine Ridge prison in Haney to find employment when the incident happened.

Green handed out a 21-day sentence, which will be served after expiration of Speck's present term and also ordered him to pay the bank $55 for the window.

"I'm at a loss as to what to do with you," Green commented, "Your record is disgraceful and you know it."

Green was speaking to 19-year-old Timothy John Combe, 914 McClure, before handing out a 14-month jail term for breaking and entering.

Court was told Combe and a juvenile companion went to a house at 3365 Upper Terrace in Oak Bay at about 8 a.m. June 25, knocked on the front door, then went around to the back where they broke in and took a radio, wrist watch, pocket watch and some gold coins.

Combe's record includes a nine-month sentence for a 1975 break-in, six months for another 1975 break-in, three months for escaping lawful custody, and one month for possession of stolen property. On a charge of attempted robbery with threats of violence, on which he elected trial by judge without jury July 6, a preliminary hearing date of Oct. 20 was set.

A 23-year-old Victoria man was fined $150 and given a nominal one day in jail on charges of mischief causing wilful damage and causing a disturbance in the lobby of the Sherwood Park Inn, 123 George.

Court was told Sweeney was going to jump into the hotel's swimming pool June 30 and was told by the manager not to. Sweeney then jumped onto the front desk and broke a piece of plexiglass, court was informed.

When police arrived, Sweeney began shouting and, at one point said to the officers: "Don't come near me unless you're ready to use your guns."

"Sounds like quite a scene," Green said when Sweeney first appeared and pleaded guilty July 13.

"Must have been," Sweeney replied. For the wilful damage, Sweeney was fined $150, was placed on eight months probation and ordered to pay $220 compensation to the Sherwood Park Inn for damage to the plexiglass. The one-day prison term was given for the charge of causing a disturbance.

Dale Robert Ferguson, 24, of no fixed address, was remanded until today for a psychologist's report after pleading guilty to stealing a package of cakes and then kicking in the window of a Victoria city police vehicle Saturday night.

Court was told the incident started shortly after 6 p.m. when Ferguson took a package of cakes valued at $1.09 from Mac's Confectionery Store, 265 Menzies, and was arrested by police. After he was placed in the back of the police car, court was told, Ferguson kicked in a window valued at $100.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Church of Scientology, in a $7.8 million federal court suit, has accused the FBI of illegal search and seizure and violation of Constitutional guarantees in raids at the church's Hollywood and Washington offices.

FBI agents smashed and sawed through doors that scientologists tried to open for them, "burst into rooms where married couples were sleeping unclothed, burst into shower stalls where people were bathing," and struck a woman on the head for trying to photograph them, the church charged in a suit filed Monday.

Agents arrived with a search warrant for 156 documents and seized 100,000, the suit complained.

The warrant specified offices on the first floor in Hollywood but agents "roamed and searched at will" living quarters on the fifth floor of the scientologists' building, the church charged.

Dream Comes True for Don Sutton

NEW YORK (AP) — Don Sutton, who has dreamed of pitching in Yankee Stadium, and Jim Palmer, who has done well in the same ballpark, drew the starting assignments for tonight's 48th major league baseball all-star game.

Sutton, the ace right-hander of Los Angeles Dodgers, and Palmer, Baltimore Orioles' right-handed stopper, have fared well in previous all-star appearances. Sutton, making his first start, has blanked the American League in five previous innings, while Palmer has hurled eight scoreless innings against the National League.

Palmer started in 1970 and 1972 without picking up a decision, but was a middle-inning reliever in 1971, the last time the AL beat the NL. In addition to the five consecutive victories, the NL has won 13 of the last 14 all-star confrontations.

"The starting assignment is a treat in one respect. Not many guys get to do this," said Palmer, whose career record is 20-11 against the Yankees. "The all-star games really haven't been so one-sided recently. Only the results have been."

The AL's chances would seem better if injuries had not ransacked its pitching staff. Out with assorted ailments are Mark (The Bird) Fidrych of Detroit Tigers, Frank Tanana of California Angels and Vida Blue of Oakland A's. California's Nolan Ryan refused to play, leaving the AL with only three starting pitchers and four relievers.

"Despite all our injuries, I still think we have an outstanding squad and we're going to break that (losing) streak," AL president Lee MacPhail said Monday.

Chub Feeney, the NL president, smugly countered MacPhail's pep talk by saying: "We expect to do what we usually do."

Sutton relishes the opportunity to start for the NL, a dream-come-true for the pitcher who wanted to become a Yankee during the team's penny-pinching days.

"Only the fact that the Yankees weren't willing to pay me more than $2,000, and I would have played in Yankee Stadium before," Sutton said.

The All-Star game will be telecast on channels 2, 5 and 6 starting at 5:15 p.m.

"I spent all my childhood dreaming of one day pitching in Yankee Stadium. I grew up on a farm in Pensacola, (Fla.), and I occupied my days pitching mental shutouts with Mickey Mantle making the last out catching the ball near the monuments."

Sutton won't be on the mound to watch the final out, giving way to another pitcher, probably after three innings if NL manager Sparky Anderson's game plan is not torpedoed by the AL bats.

It was somewhat of a surprise that Anderson, the Cincinnati Reds skipper, was starting Sutton, with whom he has had a running feud, accusing the Dodger ace of illegal pitching practices. Anderson maintains that Sutton attempts to make a round ball square, or some other shape, through some devious method.

"I knew I was a cinch to start when I got a note from Sparky last week asking me what grain of sandpaper I wanted him to order," joked Sutton.

Before Anderson's announcement, Cincinnati's Tom Seaver was expected to get the starting nod, giving the New York fans an opportunity to welcome him back following last month's trade to the Reds from the Mets.

Seaver will pitch at some point, said Anderson, whose pitching staff is weighted down by injuries to John Candalaria of Pittsburgh Pirates, Steve Carlton of Philadelphia Phillies and Joaquin Andujar of Houston Astros.

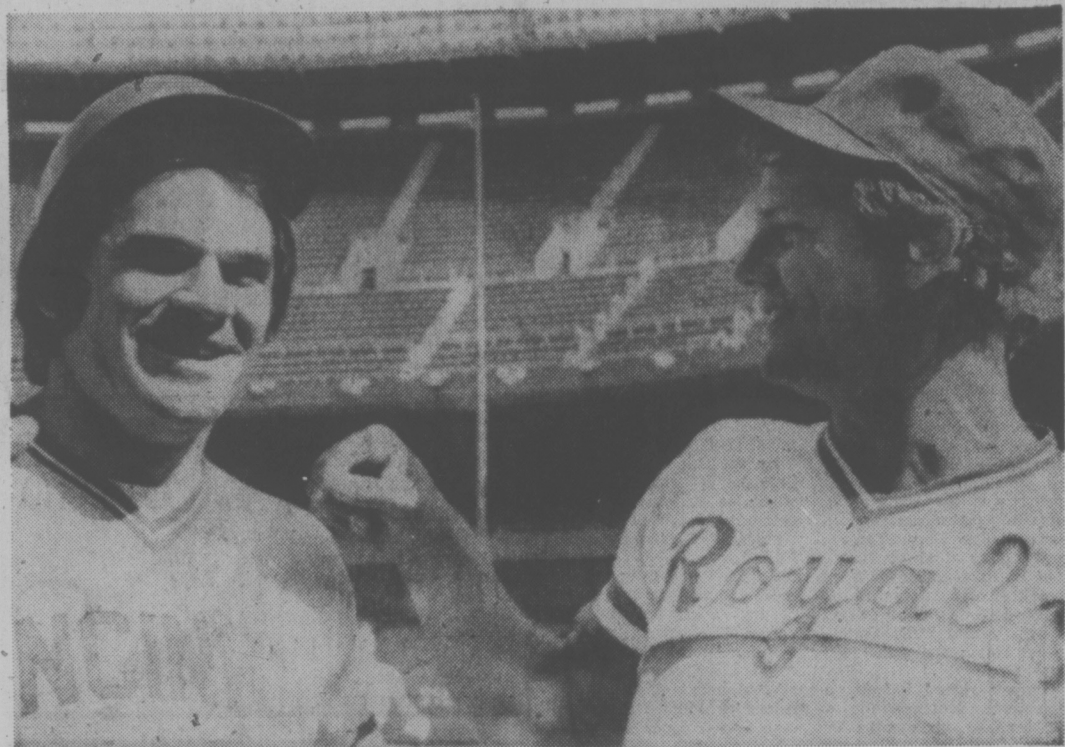

That leaves the NL with Gary Lavelle of San Francisco Giants, Rich Gossage of Pittsburgh Pirates, Rick Reuschel of Chicago Cubs, Seaver and Sutton.

The AL staff includes Sparky Lyle of New York, Bill Campbell of Boston Red Sox, Jim Kerr of Cleveland Indians and Dave LaRoche of California—all relievers. The starters on the staff are Palmer, Jim Slaton of Milwaukee Brewers and Dennis Eckersley of Cleveland. AL manager Billy Martin of the Yankees said he was leaning toward Eckersley to relieve Palmer.

The NL starting lineup will have: Joe Morgan, Cincinnati, second base; Steve Garvey,

THEY'LL BE RIVALS tonight in annual major league baseball all-star game in New York's Yankee Stadium, but third-baseman Pete Rose (left) of Cincinnati Reds and third-baseman George Brett of Kansas City Royals were obviously without animosity as they prepared for contest. Rose will be with National League stars, who have won 13 of last 14 games. (AP Wirephoto)

Independence Wins

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) —

Ted Hood, skipping Independence, captured his first race of the America's Cup observation trials, beating Enterprise by 49 seconds Monday after losing to the Lowell North-skipped 12-metre sloop by a whopping 2:19 in the day's first race.

Hood got the lead at the start by eight boat lengths — about 300 feet — and North could not recover.

Hood now has a 1-3 record in the July trials while North is 2-2 after picking up a win over Ted Turner and Courageous through disqualification. Hood's overall record is 3-3 in trials which began in June, and North is 6-8. Courageous had a day off Monday after winning three and losing one in the observations; she is 10-2 overall.

Hood took advantage of a wind shift of about 25 degrees to extend his margin over Enterprise to 43 seconds at the first mark of the six-leg, 13.5-mile second race. He pulled farther ahead on the second leg, a reaching leg which was run practically to leeward because of the wind shift, and led by 45 seconds at the second mark.

On the next two legs, North cut the margin to about 20 seconds in winds of about 10 knots, but he lost considerable ground on the final leeward leg.

Enterprise lost twice to Courageous in the first day of observation trials on Saturday, but Enterprise was awarded the victory in the second race after filing a protest against Atlanta Braves' owner Ted Turner's Courageous.

Randle Charge Cut

ORLANDO, Fla. (UPI) — A felony charge against New York Mets infielder Lenny Randle has been reduced to misdemeanor battery for the March 28 beating of former Texas Rangers manager Frank Lucchesi.

Circuit judge Maurice Paul agreed Monday to accept a no-contest plea to the reduced charge of simple battery. Randle originally was charged with aggravated battery, a felony with a 15-year maximum penalty.

Paul accepted state attorney Robert Eagan's recommendation that the felony be reduced to a misdemeanor.

The misdemeanor charge carries a maximum penalty of a year in jail and a $1,000 fine. Paul agreed to forego a jail sentence in favor of imposing the maximum fine.

Paul said the negotiated plea rests on Randle's making full restitution for all medical expenses incurred by Lucchesi, Randle's attorney, Richard Neuheisel, said he could produce documentation that would show that a $10,000 fine by the Rangers against Randle took care of Lucchesi's expenses.

Paul told Neuheisel that Randle would have to appear in court in the next few weeks for an arraignment and sentencing. The judge said he would declare Randle guilty once the no-contest plea is entered.

Randle was traded to the Mets by the Rangers shortly after the incident, which preceded a spring training game with the Minnesota Twins.

Lucchesi underwent surgery for a fractured cheekbone and was hospitalized for several days. While still with the Rangers, Randle was fined and suspended for 30 days.

Eagan said he agreed to reduce the charge because Lucchesi apparently suffered no permanent damage.

Scott Takes Squash Title

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dennis Scott, who will represent Canada in the world championships at Montreal in September, captured the men's event title in the British Columbia squash championships Sunday with a 9-4, 10-8 victory over John Hungerford.

Anna Popma took the women's crown by defeating Ruth Campbell in three straight games.

All four finalists are from the Vancouver area.

BOMBERS BOUNCE ESKS

EDMONTON (CP) — Quarterback Ralph Brock and safety Brian Herosian collaborated Monday night to lead Winnipeg Blue Bombers to a 29-26 victory over Edmonton Eskimos and ruin the Western Football Conference head coaching debut of Edmonton's Hugh Campbell.

Brock fired two second-quarter touchdown passes and generated a series of impressive marches while Herosian stalled Edmonton twice in the third quarter with an interception and a vital fumble recovery.

Herosian pounced on a fumble by Edmonton rookie Jim Germany at the Bomber two-yard line and forced the rebuilding Eskimos to settle for Dave Cutler's third field goal early in the fourth quarter.

The two Bomber stars, with a sizeable assist to slotback

Tommy Scott, overshadowed Cutler's 12-point kicking performance that gave him a career total of 978 points, seven more than former Eskimo Tommy-Joe Coffey, but still 22 points behind former Calgary Stampeder star Larry Robinson, the all-time leader.

Scott caught a 42-yard strike for one touchdown and Brock drilled an 11-yarder to Gord Paterson for another. Jim Washington erupted for a 17-yard touchdown run in the first quarter and Brock collected the winning touchdown when he rammed over from one yard out in the last quarter.

converts and a 19-yard single.

Tom Wilkinson, who completed 27 of a team-record 51 pass attempts, hit John Koniowski from 33 yards out to open the scoring and concluded it with a five-yard touchdown pass to George McGowan.

Wilkinson then combined with McGowan for a two-point conversion that left Edmonton with a chance to win the game. The convert was declared good because of Winnipeg pass interference.

Cutler, who kicked three field goals, a convert and two singles, then succeeded on a short kickoff, leaving Edmonton in possession close to midfield. But Wilkinson, hampered by a strong Winnipeg rush, good coverage and torrential rains, threw three incompletions in a row to end the threat.

$725,000 for a Colt

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) — "We were prepared to go higher," said Englishman Robert Sangster after bidding $725,000 for a chestnut colt by Secretariat at Monday night's session of the July Selection Yearling Sale at Keeneland.

The colt, out of Lady Victoria and consigned by Canada's Windfields Farm, brought the second highest total in the sale's history. A Secretariat colt out of Charming Alibi sold for $1.5 million in 1976.

The sale helped push the two-session total for 86 head to $8,040,000, compared to $5,858,000 for 96 head in 1976.

"This is the best time to buy a Secretariat, when there are doubters," said Sangster, referring to some criticism of Secretariat's breeding potential.

Sangster prevailed in a bidding war because he was determined to have the colt for British Bloodstock Agency (BBA) of Ireland.

'Conduct Is Clearly Outside the Rules'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — National Football League commissioner Pete Rozelle says there is "no place in professional football" for incidents such as George Atkinson's tackle of Lynn Swann.

Rozelle's comments were in a statement read to a jury Monday in Atkinson's $2 million slander suit against Pittsburgh Steelers and their coach, Chuck Noll.

The Oakland Raiders defensive back filed suit after Noll linked him to a "criminal element" in pro football and accused him of deliberately trying to maim Swann.

Rozelle's comments were made in a June report on his probe into both the Swann incident and an incident in a game last Dec. 18 in which New England's Russ Francis suffered a broken nose when hit by Atkinson.

"I am fully convinced that there is no place in professional football for the kinds of fouls committed by Atkinson on the two occasions in question here," Rozelle said.

"Such conduct is clearly outside the rules and calculated either to disable opposing players or 'intimidate' them into less effective performance."

Rozelle concluded by fining Atkinson $2,800 and threatening "more severe" measures if such conduct is repeated.

Also Monday, Steelers president Dan Rooney modified his initial allegations that Atkinson's hit on Swann was a "direct, premeditated, unemotional" attempt to injure him.

Rooney was questioned about a letter of protest he sent to National Football League commissioner Pete Rozelle complaining about a $1,000 fine levied on Noll for his comments.

Referring to Atkinson's hit on Swann, Rooney said: "I think it was unemotional. To say it was calculated, at this time, is hard to say."

He added: "I believe that a number of plays that occurred by the Oakland Raiders were of sufficient number to lead me to believe they were trying to knock Swann out of the game."

Rooney said he had complained to Rozelle after the game in which Swann was injured because it was one of the worst hits he had ever seen.

"I told him something should be done," Rooney said. "I was asked about testimony last week from Noll, who named several Steelers players who could be included, on occasion, in the alleged 'criminal element' because of wilful and wanton rules violations."

U.S. District Judge Sam Conti indicated Monday he expected the attorneys to present final witnesses by Friday, with final arguments and the case going to the jury on Monday.

Rooney said he had complained to Rozelle after the game in which Swann was injured because it was one of

Monarchs' Move Approved

CALGARY (CP) — Transfer of Winnipeg Monarchs of the Western Canada Hockey Association to Calgary has been approved by league governors, league president Ed Chynoweth announced Monday.

He told a news conference the league recognized problems faced by the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede Association for the 6500-seat Corral—which has been the home ice for the former Centennials and the Calgary Cowboys of the World Hockey Association.

Brisson said the Monarchs, who closed their Winnipeg of-stices that led to the Centennials' decision to move to Billings.

Gerry Brisson, owner of the Monarchs, told the news conference that the new Calgary team—still without a name—will be competitive.

He said the team has been given a three-year lease by the Calgary Exhibition and Stampede Association for the 6500-seat Corral—which has been the home ice for the former Centennials and the Calgary Cowboys of the World Hockey Association.

Brisson said the Monarchs, who closed their Winnipeg of-stices last week, played to an average home crowd of 1100.

He said he will announce within two weeks the appointment of a coach and general manager.

Rumored to be in the running for either position is Pat Ginnell, former manager-coach of Victoria Cougars. Ginnell sold his majority interest in the Cougars recently to Vancouver hotelman Ray Haremboure and has purchased a home in Calgary.

Meanwhile, the Cowboys are expected to announce whether they will seek to join the National Hockey League or fold the franchise.

In another matter, Chynoweth said the WHL could start its 1977-78 schedule as early as Sept. 21. He told the news conference the governors would begin to set the league's 72-game schedule today.

Chynoweth said while the playoff format is still to be finalized, it was anticipated that the schedule would run through March 25.

He said there would be a break in the regular season to allow the WHL to send players to the world junior hockey tournament in December. He said Ernie McLean, coach of New Westminster Bruins, would be the league's nominee for one of the three coaches on the Canadian team. The other two coaches would come from Eastern Canadian Leagues.

Chynoweth also said the WHL has been awarded six games with the Moscow Selects between Dec. 7-20. The dates and sites for these games will be announced later.

BRENTWOOD OARSMEN SELECTED

MILL BAY — Tom Pankratz and Gord Langer of Brentwood College were named Monday to the 24-member team to represent Canada in the world junior rowing championships Aug. 3-6 in Tampere, Finland.

Pankratz will row on the fours with cox and will be on the eights.

The balance of the team is dominated by members of the St. Catharines Rowing Club and competitors from Ridley College, near St. Catharines.

Touring Club Tops Alberta

CALGARY — The touring Scottish national women's field hockey team, which faces Canada in Victoria on Saturday, topped Alberta 3-1 in an exhibition match here Monday.

The match was deadlocked 1-1 at half time but the visiting side combined team work with some excellent shooting to pull away from the provincial squad midway through the second half.

Solomon Takes Western Crown

CINCINNATI (AP) — Third-seeded Harold Solomon of the United States swept the first five games, breaking service three times, and went on to defeat No. 4 seed Mark Cox of Britain, 6-2, 6-3, and win the men's singles title at the $100,000 Western tennis championships Monday night. The victory, worth $15,000 to the 24-year-old native of Pompano Beach, Fla., was Solomon's seventh consecutive victory over Cox.

Solomon defeated sixth-seeded John Alexander of Australia in Sunday's semifinals, while Cox ousted unseeded Rick Fagle of the U.S.

Colony Bats Belt A Swinging Tune

Colony Motor Inn exploded for 15 hits Monday en route to a 15-5 decision over Hygrade Radio at Hyacinth Park and a share of first place in the Victoria Senior Women's Softball League with CJVI Vicettes.

In the other game, Victoria Athletics dropped Mac-

Donalds Furniture, 8-1. Lorraine Tuttle and Julie Barber came up with three hits each to lead the Colony attack and Sharon Ferrill scattered eight hits and struck out eight while picking up the pitching victory.

Maggie Radcliff led Athletics with three singles in four trips to the plate. In the only men's game played in the district Monday, playing-coach Al Graham's shutout pitching carried Sidney Hotel to a 6-0 victory over Tsawout in a Sidney League game at Sansha Park.

Canadian Marksmen Salute First Winner

BISLEY, England (CP) — The Canadian team fired a one-gun salute Monday night for Art Grundy of Windsor, Ont. his country's first individual trophy winner at the Bisley shoot.

Grundy, a supervisor in the General Motors transmission plant at Windsor, won the corporation Challenge Cup, the first 1,000-yard trophy, firing into a wind that played havoc with the scores.

After two days of multiple ties, Grundy was the only marksman who could put nine of 10 shots into the bullseye. His 10th shot went into the inner ring for a total score of 49.

His team-mates celebrated by firing off the old cannon which decorates the MacDonald Stewart Pavilion, the Canadian headquarters.

Team adjutant Dave Letson of Ottawa said: "This was a great win and it was time to let off the cannon to celebrate it."

"Everybody has been having hell on that long range. It must be the worst wind at Bisley for years." Lt.-Gen. William A. Milroy, team commandant, hailed the accomplishment as "great news."

Dutch Squad Held to Tie

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Dutch and Canadian national men's field hockey teams played to a scoreless draw Sunday, leaving the touring squad with two victories and two ties in four test matches against the Canadian nationals.

The Dutch team, which also played exhibition contests at Victoria, Toronto and Calgary, finished a Canadian tour with an over-all record of eight wins, one loss and two ties.

Frenchman Leading

CHAMONIX, France (AP) — Dietrich Thurau of West Germany won the 16th leg of the Tour de France bicycle race Monday, 55 miles in the mile-high Alps from Merzine to Chamonix, but Bernard Thevenet of France retained the over-all lead.

"He told me he could not handle the wind on days like this, but I guess he has done so better than anybody else in the end."

Grundy, a Canadian small-bore champion, said before his match that he was used to the lighter rifles and had little experience in firing the heavier rifles in high winds.

Ironically, Grundy's team-mates knew about his victory before the victor did.

As the scores were being tallied, Grundy left to visit Judith Ouellette, widow of his friend for many years, the

Ottawa 'Reaching Into Grave for Taxes ...'

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Trudeau government is "reaching into the grave" to collect taxes, under proposed changes on life insurance taxes, it was charged Monday by the Progressive Conservative opposition in the Commons.

Finance Minister Don Macdonald is reversing the trend away from death duties to tax survivors at the time when they are suffering a bereavement, opposition house leader Walter Baker said.

He appealed to the government to abandon "this particularly repellent" attempt to generate more revenue for the treasury.

The Liberal government's plans to implement new taxes on owners of life insurance policies has aroused a storm of protest from the life insurance companies and from policy holders.

Gordon Ritchie (PC-Dauphin) in the house said the proposed new taxes on the holders of life insurance policies could affect the tax status of millions of Canadians and billions of dollars in policy benefits.

He said the plan to tax policy savings gains at death amounts to "reaching into the grave to tax the results of Canadian productivity and foresight."

While making changes in the corporation tax treatment of life insurance companies increasing their tax liability the last federal budget proposed three changes that affect the tax status of the owner of the life insurance policy.

Where no tax had been imposed before under the new law the excess of cash surrender value over premiums paid will be added to the income of the beneficiary.

Where no tax had been assessed before now a policyowner borrowing on the "gain" positions of the policy borrowing more than the amount of premiums paid will have the amount of the loan that exceeds premiums added to his or her income.

Where interest paid in servicing a policy loan had been deductible from income if that loan was applied to a purpose which would increase the policyowner's income — such as borrowing on a policy by a small businessman — the new law will not allow interest deductibility under any circumstances.

CURB END PLANNING NEARLY COMPLETE

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is hoping to announce its plans for the removal of wage and price controls no later than the first week of August, although prospects for lower consumer prices are bleak, the Commons was told Monday.

Finance Minister Donald Macdonald said consultations with officials in all the provinces would be wrapped up this week, paving the way for cabinet study of a de-controls strategy by the end of the month.

A formal announcement on the date for an end to the compulsory controls program would come early next month, Macdonald told Conservative finance critic Sinclair Stevens.

The controls program, imposed in October of 1975, is not due to expire legally until Dec. 31, 1978.

FOUR LEADERS SKIP HOUSE

OTTAWA (CP) — None of the four party leaders attended Monday's question period in the Commons and at least two of them appear to have begun their summer holidays before the official adjournment, coming perhaps on Wednesday.

Joe Clark of the Progressive Conservatives and Ed Broadbent of the New Democrats are both on holiday, and their offices said they would be away all week.

Prime Minister Trudeau was attending a Liberal conference and Gilles Caouette, acting leader of the Social Credit Party, was travelling in his riding of Temiscamingue. Both Trudeau and Caouette are expected back after Monday.

Bell Execs Paid Over Guidelines

OTTAWA (CP) — Bell Canada paid a group of 29 executive officers an average $6,000 more in 1976 than they were entitled to receive under the anti-inflation program, the anti-inflation board said Monday.

The board requested Bell to modify its executive salary and fringe benefit plan for 1976 so that the executives will not get more than an average maximum increase of $2,400.

A spokesman for the company said Bell Canada would likely appeal the decision.

He said the decision apparently resulted from a difference in interpretation of figures.

AECL Over Costs Again

OTTAWA (CP) — Construction costs of a heavy water plant at La Prade, Que., are expected to be well above the original $453-million estimated, an official of Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd. (AECL) said Monday.

A. R. Burge, AECL public affairs director, confirmed in an interview that the Crown corporation is conducting a financial review of the La Prade plant and other projects following the uproar over a projected loss of $130 million on a sale to Argentina.

Earlier, Allan Lawrence (P.C.—Northumberland-Durham) said he has information that the final cost of the La Prade project is going to be "a pretty adobe amount." He did not state a figure.

He said he wonders who the government "will have left to fire" at AECL if the ultimate cost is greater than the estimate.

AECL president J. S. Foster was fired two weeks ago after the government learned the expected loss on AECL's sale of a nuclear reactor to Argentina is $130 million.

Lawrence also questioned Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie on $30 million which he said has been budgeted to cover losses on sale of heavy water to foreign countries.

Gillespie said the amount has been set aside for losses which may happen over a period of five or more years.

The La Prade project was launched in 1974 to supply heavy water to the nearby Gentilly atomic power station near Trois Rivières, Que., and other power stations in Canada and abroad.

KNOWLES MAKES BID FOR PENSION HIKES

OTTAWA (FP) — Now that the government has lifted the ceiling on high ranking public servants' salaries, it should give consideration to the serious needs of old age and war veteran pensioners, Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) told the Commons Monday.

Two thousand top ranking executives in the government's employ will get an average increase of $2,250 a year retroactive to April 1, boosting their annual salaries to a maximum of $82,500 for senior deputy ministers.

Knowles noted wryly that the government appeared able to find the funds for pay raises for the already well paid public servants and suggested that treasury board should be able to announce increases for senior citizens and war veterans.

Veterans Affairs Minister Daniel Macdonald assured the opposition MP he would be continuing to press the matter in cabinet.

Biron Disagrees With Poll

MONTREAL (CP) — Union Nationale leader Rodrigue Biron says a recent opinion poll interpreted by some as a boost for Quebec independence actually indicates Quebecers want to stay in Canada under a more decentralized Confederation.

The poll, published this week by Le Devoir, supports the UN policy of seeking a third option between independence and the current form of federalism, Biron said Tuesday.

The UN leader added he cannot understand why Prime Minister Trudeau seems "intoxicated by the constitutional status quo when all the provincial premiers reject it with the back of the hand."

The poll by the firm of Page, Roy and Associates was confined to the single provincial riding of St. Jean, considered a bellweather district because it has voted for the winning party in every Quebec election since 1939.

The poll said 47.9 per cent of respondents backed independence if the Quebec government could guarantee an economic association with the rest of Canada, while 30.7 per cent were opposed and the rest undecided.

Foundry Workers Running Risk Of Lung Cancer, Study Shows

HAMILTON (CP) — Foundry workers more than 45 years old at Dominion Foundries and Steel Co. of Canada Ltd. (Dofasco) have 4½ times the risk of lung cancer as workers in other parts of the plant, a 10-year study of company medical records has shown.

It is the first known study to link increased chance of lung cancer with a steel foundry.

A company spokesman said this week that Dofasco has monitored more than 40 gases, vapors and particulates in the foundry since completing the medical records study, but has found nothing it can link with lung cancer.

The spokesman said Dofasco has notified Workers' Compensation Board of its findings and has made application for benefits on behalf of foundry workers who have died of lung cancer.

At least one such application by a widow was previously turned down by the board because there was no evidence linking steel foundry work with lung cancer.

The spokesman said the increased risk seems to apply to men who have worked more than five years in the foundry and there is a 20-year time lag before cancer develops.

Almost all the foundry workers in the study who died of lung cancer also were cigarette smokers.

Dr. Robert Martin, corporate medical director, said last week that the conditions which could have caused lung cancer may no longer exist because of foundry improvements in the last 20 years.

"I would hesitate to say the hazard has been eliminated because we have no proof," he said.

Port Angeles Oil Terminal Backers Skip Canada Probe

SOCKEYE ESCAPEMENT DELAYS NET FISHING

VANCOUVER (CP) — Salmon net fishing in the Fraser River and Gulf Islands will not open until 4 p.m. Wednesday this week to let the last of the early Stuart Lake sockeye run escape to the spawning beds.

Fishing will end Friday at 8 a.m. There will be no fishing in United States waters this week to even the catch between the two countries.

So far U.S. gillnetters and seiners have caught 706,000 fish, Canadian boats have taken 437,000 and 300,000 sockeye have been allowed to escape.

John Roos, assistant director of the International Pacific Salmon Fisheries Commission, said an escapement of 400,000 fish is needed to get 300,000 to the spawning grounds. About 100,000 fish are caught by native Indians for their own use.

Although most of the Stuart Lake run will have gone through by Wednesday, Roos said several smaller runs should provide fishermen with good catches.

A few early fish from the Horseshy and late Stuart runs should also be showing in the river and should produce bumper harvests.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The federal inquiry into the implications of a West Coast oil port, won't be limited to Canada because two of the proposed sites are in Washington state, Russell Anthony, inquiry counsel, said Monday.

Anthony told the opening day of the inquiry, that while it will not become involved in United States affairs, it is essential that some understanding be gained of the international energy situation.

But he said Northern Tier Pipeline Ltd. of Montana, which proposed an oil terminal at Port Angeles, has decided not to appear at the inquiry despite an earlier commitment to do so.

Northern Tier proposes to unload oil from tankers at Port Angeles and move it by pipeline across the northern U.S. to Minnesota.

A Northern Tier spokesman said in Seattle Monday the company won't attend because "you're in Canada and we're in America... it's not relevant to us."

The inquiry will still hear from two other pipeline companies proposing terminals at Cherry Point and Kitimat, and special interest groups.

Alternatives for shipping oil include changing Northern Tier's proposal to include a pipeline spur to link oil unloaded at Port Angeles with the Edmonton-to-Vancouver pipeline owned by Trans Mountain Pipe Line Co.

Trans Mountain already proposes that the same pipeline be connected to the Cherry Point oil port so crude oil could be shipped to Edmonton and then to the northern United States through the existing pipeline systems.

A Kitimat Pipe Line Co. proposal, which was shelved by proponents earlier this year in favor of the Trans Mountain project, calls for a port at Kitimat and a 750-mile pipeline to Edmonton.

The proposals prompted the federal government to appoint

Andrew Thompson, a University of British Columbia law professor, to examine the environmental, legal and social implications of the need to import Alaska and overseas oil through a west coast port that would serve both Canada and the northern U.S.

Anthony said the inquiry has a broad scope and will include issues such as oil tanker construction, legal liability for spills and air pollution and the regulation of marine traffic.

Thompson, the former chairman of the British Columbia Energy Commission, said he hoped the inquiry contributions to public understanding of a complex problem.

He said the onus of proving the feasibility of each oil port lies with the company proposing it.

Thompson said some people in B.C. see the benefits of energy supply going to the rest of Canada and the northern U.S., while the environmental hazards remain on the coast.

Heroin Will Burn

BANGKOK (Reuters) — Thai authorities will burn 625 pounds of heroin seized in drug trafficking cases, the Bangkok Post reported Monday.

The newspaper quoted an official source as saying the heroin, confiscated in 1974 and 1975, would be burned on August 11. The heroin is worth about $425,000 in Bangkok, and 100 times that amount in Europe or North America.

U.K. Union Leader Director

VANCOUVER (CP) — British Trade Union leader Joe Gormley has been sitting on the board of directors of Vancouver Wharves Ltd. since May, David Odhams, chairman and chief executive of the North Vancouver Terminal Company, said Monday.

A 1974 strike by the National Union of Mineworkers, which Gormley heads, toppled the Edward Heath government. Heath called an election after a 13-week slowdown by 280,000 miners which forced a three-day week on British industry and escalated into a 3½-week strike to back demands for a wage increase that would violate Heath Conservative government anti-inflation program.

Vancouver Wharves is a wholly-owned subsidiary of B.C. Wharves Ltd., a holding company controlled by William Hudson Group Ltd. of England, which recommended Gormley to fill a British vacancy on the board. This was our competitors, Odhams said.

"I would not like to have a representative of our own union on the board because it is representing labor at all our competitors," Odhams said.

"But somebody that not only has a union outlook, not in the same union, not even in the same country, will probably be able to give us good advice."

VRB 'USED AS WHIP'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Resources Board chiefs said Monday that the VRB was once used as a tool to whip Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm and Social Credit policy — but that is in the past and is no reason for the minister to abolish the board now.

VRB chairman Ron Renwick, Vice-Chairman Pam Glass and Manager Dave

Schrenk, concurred that Vander Zalm's opinion of VRB political activities is based on outdated information.

Vander Zalm said last week that one of the main reasons for introducing legislation to phase out the board was because it had not been following his policy guidelines.

He cited welfare fraud investigation and the job finders program as two examples.

Fenwick said there is no question the board was an embarrassment to the minister, but those days are over.

The board has bent over backwards to accommodate policy directives from Victoria.

Glass said the VRB was once used to whip Vander Zalm, but that changed when new members with a more conservative outlook were appointed in January.

Judge Rejects Leniency On Deportation Grounds

VANCOUVER (CP) — A defence plea that three men sentenced Monday in British Columbia Supreme Court for moral offences be given light sentences to save them from being deported was ignored by Mr. Justice E. David Fulton.

Mr. Justice Fulton said Gurmaj Singh Basra, Baldev Singh Judge and Nardip Singh Judge must be treated the same as any Canadian. He left it to immigration authorities to deal with deportation considerations.

He gave Basra 17 months and Baldev Judge 11 months for attempted rape of a 19-year-old woman, and suspended the passing of sentence for one year on Nardip Singh Judge for having sexual intercourse with a feeble-minded person — the same woman.

It marked the end of one of the longest rape trials in the Vancouver courts, in which the rare charge of having sex with a feeble-minded woman was placed before a jury.

The court was told the three men were with the woman in a Vancouver apartment, that she consented to having sexual intercourse with Nardip Judge but that the other two men sought sex with her against her will and were resisted.

The criminal code offence of which Nardip was convicted makes it an offence for a male to have intercourse with a female person not his wife who was, and who he had good reason to believe was, "feeble-minded, insane, or an idiot, or imbecile."

Defence lawyers Wallace Oppal and Henry Sarava asked the judge to keep in mind, the influence of whatever sentence he imposes on immigration officials who, they said, would be almost certain to take deportation proceedings against the trio who are landed immigrants from India.

Oppal said a general rule with immigration officials considering deportation seems to be that any sentence over six months weighs heavily against the person before them.

Crown counsel William Smart opposed any leniency. He said the three would not necessarily be deported.

Library Lease Offer Revised

A revised proposal for the Greater Victoria Library Board to lease space for a new central library in the provincial government building under construction at Blanshard and Broughton was approved in principle by the board's building committee on Monday.

The proposal will be considered by the full library board on Thursday. If accepted there, it will be circulated to the four core municipalities, owners of the library system.

Three of them — Saanich, Oak Bay and Esquimalt, had earlier rejected the original offer from the provincial government.

Several of the objectors considered that offer too costly, and there were also some opposed to the principle of leasing, rather than owning, library accommodation.

The latest offer, which follows several meetings between representatives of the library board and B.C. Buildings Corporation, provides for a lower rent as well as other terms considered more favorable to the municipalities.

The rental figure would be $8.25 per square foot, compared with $9 per square foot under the original proposal. A provincial grant to the GVLB would soften the financial blow, however, by producing a net rental of $6.25 p.s.f.

That rental would be fixed for the lease term of 10 years, and the committee was told that there would be built-in options for renewal and expansion of the leased space.

Initially 50,000 square feet — 34,000 on the ground floor, another 16,000 on the second floor — would be leased to the library board.

But the tenants would have the option to lease a further 10,000 square feet after the fifth year, a further 10,000 after the 10th year and then an additional 5,000 square feet after the 15th year.

Under the revamped offer, the province undertakes to carry out several building improvements, including the provision of elevator and stairway, at its own expense.

The total annual cost of leasing and operating the library in the proposed new location is estimated at $406,500, compared with $448,500 under the earlier proposal.

Individual municipal contributions (with earlier estimates shown in brackets) would be: Victoria $104,350 ($181,228); Saanich $160,690 ($177,292); Oak Bay $46,664 ($51,488); Esquimalt $34,796 ($38,382).

The municipalities have until Aug. 19 to accept the province's second and final offer.

2,4-D Expunged Okanagan Weed, Biologist Says

PENTICTON (CP) — All traces of Eurasian milfoil have disappeared from parts of the north arm of Okanagan Lake treated last year with the herbicide 2,4-D, Karl Marsden, provincial biologist in charge of the government's weed-control program, said Monday.

Marsden said the observation was made after aerial surveillance of the area.

If the public approved, the government would implement a program throughout the valley next year, he said.

Marsden said that Dr. Dana Saunders told a recent meeting at Oroville, Wash., that millions have been spent on researching biological and mechanical methods of milfoil control but 2,4-D is still the most effective weapon.

Some citizens have opposed use of the chemical in the Okanagan because of the possibility of contamination.

Five Unions Eye Seabus

VANCOUVER (CP) — Sea Bus project manager Charles Spratt said Sunday that five unions have applied to represent the 69 workers employed by the ferry service across Burrard Inlet.

He said the unions — the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, the Office and Technical Employees Union, the Canadian Merchant Service Guild, the Amalgamated Transit Union and the Management and Professional Employees Society of B.C. Hydro — have asked the B.C. Labor Relations Board to decide who should represent which workers.

The LRB heard arguments from the unions and employees Thursday and Friday, he said.

Richmond Alderman Faces Impaired Driving Charge

RICHMOND (CP) — Ald. Bill Sigurgeirson, a 46-year-old lawyer, has been charged with impaired driving and with refusing to take a breath test June 30. A trial date of Oct. 26 was fixed in provincial court Monday.

Sigurgeirson was first elected to office for a one-year term last November. If he is convicted, he will be ineligible to stand for re-election this November under provisions of the Municipal Act.

Sigurgeirson is the second Richmond alderman to be charged with criminal offences in the last eight months. Former alderman Bob Hobbs is due to appear in Vancouver county court Aug. 8 for trial on charges of obtaining credit through false pretences, forgery, and with uttering a forged document. Hobbs was defeated in municipal elections last November.

Carter Seeks Tough Labor Legislation

WASHINGTON Post — President Jimmy Carter asked Congress Monday to strengthen the collective bargaining rights of workers and impose stiff penalties on employers who violate labor laws.

Outlining the president's congressional message on labor law reform, U.S. Labor Secretary Ray Marshall acknowledged that the proposals are controversial but said the administration intends to fight for them.

Marshall described the package — the result of intensive negotiations between the administration and the AFL-CIO over the last few weeks — as the "first comprehensive effort to reform our basic labor laws in 30 years" and predicted it will be "one of the major domestic accomplishments of the Carter administration."

Key elements of the package, which is expected to be introduced today by Sen. Harrison Williams and Rep. Frank Thompson, include:

— Fixed deadlines for holding union representation elections, ranging from 15 to 75 days after authorization cards have been signed, in order to eliminate delays that unions contend work against them.

— Denial of federal contracts for three years to firms that "willfully and repeatedly" violate orders of the national Labor Relations Board unless the labor department finds that the denial would adversely affect the "national interest."

— Compensation to workers for wage increases lost when employers unfairly refuse to bargain for a first contract, with workers to be paid the difference between their existing wages and industry averages or some other relevant standard.

— Double back pay to employees who are illegally discharged for union activities.

— Expansion of the LRB from five to seven members, broadening of its injunctive powers to bar unfair labor practices, authority for two of its members (rather than the full board) to decide routine cases and more broad-scale rule-making by the board to avoid delays involved in case-by-case decisions.

Marshall said it's not "totally accurate" to call the legislation a "labor bill," asserting that businesses as well as unions will benefit from "reforms that will lead to a more smoothly functioning LRB."

However, AFL-CIO president George Meany promptly endorsed the package, and Richard Leshner, president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, denounced it as a "thinly veiled attempt to increase the size, financial strength and political power of organized labor by forcing unionization of the American worker..."

RUSSIAN SPY GIVEN LIFE BY U.S. COURT

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A federal judge sentenced Andrew Dalton Lee to life in prison for selling top secret CIA documents to the Russians as a warning to others that espionage "is a game you do not play."

"This man was willing to do anything to hurt his country so long as the price was right," U.S. District Court Judge Robert Kelleher said Monday in sentencing Lee. The judge said he felt compelled to show other adventurers that espionage is not a lark.

Lee, 25, and accomplice Christopher John Boyce, 24, were the first spies for Russia to be convicted in recent years in a major American trial.

Phosphate Ban Eyed for States

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency is on the verge of endorsing legislation effectively banning phosphates in detergents in eight states surrounding the Great Lakes.

Phosphates, a nutrient, causes excessive growth of underwater vegetation, which dies and decays, depleting the lakes' oxygen.

EPA's endorsement if approved by the Office of Management and Budget, would represent a major policy reversal on the controversial water pollution issue.

Despite a national outcry that Lake Erie and its sister lakes were "dying," the Nixon administration in 1971 decided to oppose a federal ban of phosphate detergents, proposing instead that cities build sewage plants capable of removing phosphates. Since, research has shown that the most advanced treatment plants cannot adequately control phosphate pollution. Before leaving office last year, former EPA administrator Russell Train endorsed a phosphate ban in Great Lakes states.

"Tens of millions of Americans depend on the lakes for drinking water and recreation," said Sen. Gaylord Nelson who introduced the phosphate ban bill.

COURT ALLOWS SUIT OVER GM ENGINES

NEW YORK (AP) — A state judge Monday denied a motion by General Motors to dismiss a consumer-fraud suit involving engine switches on GM cars.

The suit was brought by Louis Lefkowitz, state attorney-general, who obtained a judgment against GM last spring for selling more than 5,000 Oldsmobiles, Pontiacs and Buicks with cheaper Chevrolet engines installed without the knowledge of purchasers. GM entered a consent agreement afterward promising to make restitution.

In his second lawsuit, Lefkowitz charged he has obtained evidence that GM had been switching engines in all of its automobile divisions, installing Oldsmobile and Pontiac engines in Buicks, Buick engines in Oldsmobiles, Oldsmobile and Buick engines in Pontiacs and Oldsmobile engines in Cadillac Seville.

Join the navy and see the world — or be a gourmet. In the French navy it looks like food comes high on the list of priorities, judging from the menus aboard the weekend visitor to Esquimalt, Balny, a frigate based on Papeete, Tahiti.

Officers and crew are served the same food, such as asperges vinaigrette, jambon de parme cornichon, caille aux raisins, french fried potatoes, salad, cake and champagne; or fillet de maquereaux vin blanc, viande froide mayonnaise, french fries, salad, cheese plate and dessert. And beverage includes beer or wine.

Ever heard of a banana-gram?

Actually we just made that word up but maybe it's what Rudy Burke of 855 Douglas has got.

He bought a bunch of green bananas recently and was startled to find a sort of message on one as they ripened — the letters "F.C." appeared in brown as the bananas turned yellow. They had been carved and remained invisible while the banana was green.

"There has to be a reason," he says and speculates "is this person in trouble?"

The bananas probably came from the West Indies or Hawaii, he says and he wonders what's going on in the banana fields out there.

So all you banana eaters, keep an eye peeled for the next instalment and let us know.

A portrait of the Queen and large Union Jack have been prominently displayed for several weeks on Victoria streets as Gray Lines double decker bus tours' contribution to the Silver Jubilee.

The emblems are painted on the sides of a bus given over entirely to aluminium paint, copied from the 50 real London buses trimmed in silver for the Queen's 25th anniversary.

A renovated interior goes along with the paint job.

McPherson: A Decade Of Change

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

In 10 years as manager of the city-owned McPherson Playhouse, John Dyck has experienced marked changes in the lifestyle of the city, its audiences and performers.

Audiences are getting younger, he says, and young people coming to events at the Mac have more than doubled. Perhaps because of that, dress habits have changed a lot.

"It's a matter of comfort and convenience and individual choice rather than convention now," he says. "But we do draw a line here and there. For sanitary reasons we don't allow bare feet in the theatre and shirts must be worn."

"If a young man comes to the theatre bare to the waist we send him off to get a shirt. It's a question of audience protection. What rules we have are for the benefit of the majority."

Another change is in the audience smoking pattern.

"There used to be a blue haze in the foyer after intermission when I was first here. Nowadays the only time the smoke is heavy is at a show catering to teen-agers."

At the beginning of the 60s, the then Empire Theatre on Government Street (sometime York, sometime Totem, and way back the Pantages) was languishing in neglect, decaying in dust-filled, mouldy emptiness.

Today the comfortable 835-seat McPherson is considered a gem among small theatres by visiting artists and groups. Requisitioned to the city with funds for restoration, by the late Thomas S. McPherson, it opened in 1965 after being renovated and developed to fit into the concept of Centennial Square.

The theatre recently entered a new and more comprehensive phase when the new McPherson Playhouse Foundation took over its operation.

Dyck points to changes already established, such as the arts and crafts gallery in the mezzanine lounge which provides free space for all sorts of community organizations, and the picture loan display from the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria which occupies the formerly dead foyer area at the back of the main floor auditorium.

The theatre is now open during the day to permit the public to view the displays. There is no charge. The new permanent location for wheelchairs in the main auditorium is another point of pride.

Dyck is the third person to hold the McPherson's manager position and is equipped for the role. Aside from an equable temperament and a poised and engaging personality, he has had a close personal involvement with the arts in addition to business experience.

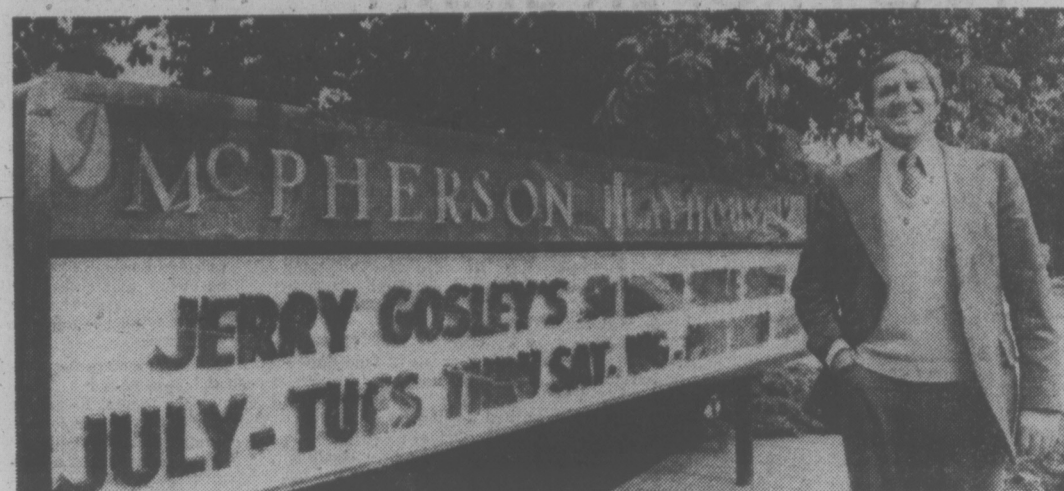

Through high school and college years in Winnipeg, he played violin in orchestras and chamber ensembles and sang with choral groups, all of which convinced him that he wanted to commit his future to some area of the arts. Common sense dictated that he enter the business world to gain experience and establish some financial security. So with a friend he formed several oil field supply and servicing companies with which he spent five years in northern B.C.

Returning to his first love, he successfully completed a battery of tests given by a firm of industrial psychologists which pointed him in the direction of administration. Several years were spent in Vancouver as general manager of Overture Concerts and from there he came to the McPherson.

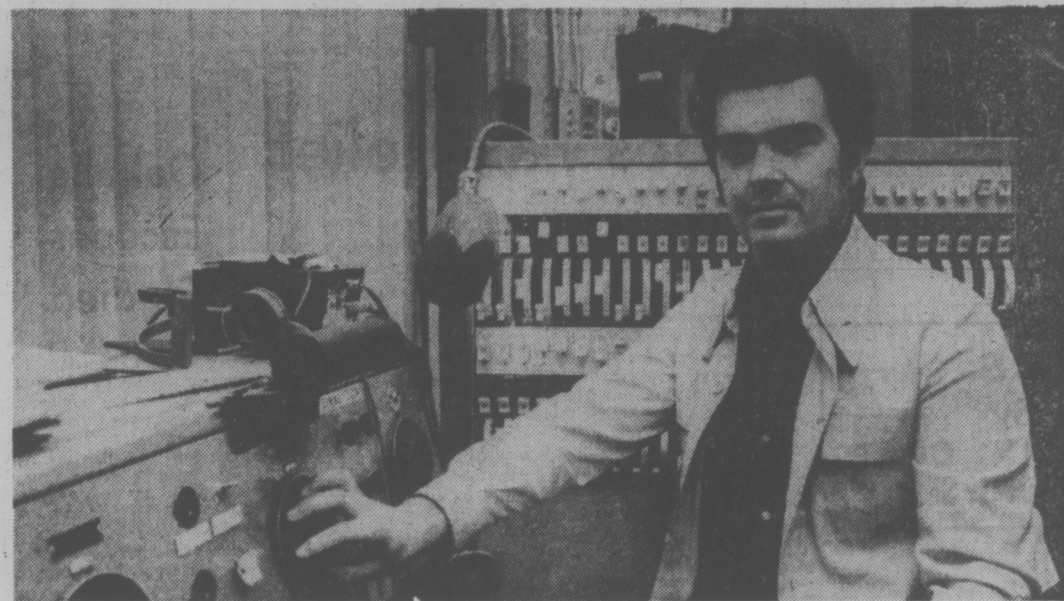

When Dyck started his tenure the theatre could not be rented on Sundays because of the so-called blue laws. But that was changed and now Sunday is one of the most popular rental days.

"We have 55 Sunday bookings in 1977. Only two Sundays have not been used so far," he says.

Bar facilities, introduced after Dyck became manager, are growing in popularity but have never been troublesome,

Lawrence Eastick, 'an incredibly competent technical director'

he says. A theatre situation is a complex one always brewing some new hazard but "the staff and I short-circuit many potential troubles," Dyck says.

"For example, young people's attention span is very short (probably thanks to television) but we ward off disturbance to patrons caused by constant movement in and out of the auditorium by closing off the concessions during performance. Also anyone coming out of the auditorium is not allowed back in until an intermission."

The McPherson staff is capable and supportive, he says. Lawrence Eastick, in his 11th year at the theatre as stage manager, has a new title too.

"He's an incredibly competent technical director," says Dyck. "He continues to provide service well beyond the call, both to management and public."

Dyck says the staff's enthusiasm and creativity in coming forward with ideas has increased markedly under the foundation which has been in effect just four months.

The brainchild of Community Arts Council president Allan M. Purdy, the foundation of the theatre on a lease arrangement with city council, in Dyck's view, "showed great vision in giving the concept their unanimous endorsement."

"We, and particularly Purdy and I, work extremely well together," Dyck says. He describes Purdy as having the catalytic qualities which stimulate the arts and make things happen.

Among improvements already made is the carpeting which has been extended throughout the foyer and the two handsome display units which inform the visitor on current and coming activity.

In the works are plans to link the box office with a computerized operation which will greatly improve its services; establishment of a club lounge in the upper foyer; free noon-hour concerts through the fall and winter; children's shows and arts seminars.

Dyck has an understandable enthusiasm for a foundation project that will see television monitors mounted in the lobbies.

"These will help solve our problem with late-comers who will be able to follow the show until a convenient time occurs for them to take their seats."

"Access to various levels of grants and donated goods and services enables the foundation to operate the McPherson with greater economy than before," Dyck says.

Donations so far, aside from the provincial government's start-up grant of $10,000, have included goods and services, among them the lobby display units and the donors' and directors' panel on the foyer wall.

"We're planning to mount fund raising benefit concerts for the theatre and an annual arts auction. The auction would be similar to the Ponce Program in Seattle which generates in the neighborhood of $200,000 for the arts."

There is more, a great deal more in the program — ideas to serve the community on an even broader scale and plans for upgrading the efficiency of the stage area.

"If the first 10 years saw changes," says executive director Dyck, "the next 10 will see many more, most of them hopefully, steadily improving the theatre's impact on the public."

He sees Purdy's concept and its fulfillment through the foundation as providing the fullest interpretation of the terms of the McPherson bequest which asked that the theatre "be made available to the widest benefit of the citizens of the metropolitan area."

Fatal Oak Bay Fire Blamed on Cigarette

A carelessly placed cigarette caused a fire that took the life of a 53-year-old woman in Oak Bay Monday night, Oak Bay fire chief Fred Leeke said today.

Leeke said Mary Sands, wife of Victoria funeral director Laverne Sands, died of apparent cardiac arrest while trying to escape the fire which broke out at 3166 West-dome at about 8:30 p.m.

He said the fire originated in a bed in a bedroom at the rear of the single-storey house and felt there could be no other explanation than carelessness smoking. Mrs. Sands, who was alone at the time, was a smoker, he added.

Firemen found her body on the kitchen floor near a back door. She was dressed in night clothing, showed no signs of being burned and apparently had collapsed from the fumes as she tried to get out of the house, Leeke said.

Efforts were made to revive her but she was pronounced dead on arrival at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Leeke estimated about $30,000 damage was done to the house which was gutted in the rear and extensively damaged by smoke.

The chief said when firemen arrived they connected lines to a hydrant on Henderson that was temporarily out of service, and had to use a backup hydrant on West-dome a short distance from the house.

The delay caused no problems in the fire-fighting operations because firemen used the water in the pumps until the backup lines were connected.

Leeke said only three of the 360 hydrants in Oak Bay are temporarily out of service and the one on Henderson was coincidentally one of them. It had sprung a leak and firemen are awaiting delivery of new parts.

Leeke said firemen had the fire under control within 15 minutes and extinguished within an hour.

He said neighbors reported smelling smoke for about half an hour before the fire was detected but thought it was someone using an incinerator.

He said the fire must have smouldered for some time to generate such intense heat.

"There are so many synthetic things used in homes these days that when there's a fire there are real problems with toxic gases given off," the chief said.

Saanich Staff Gets 8% Raise

Saanich council Monday approved an eight per cent pay raise for non-union members of the municipal staff.

The raises were recommended by council's personnel committee and apply to 46 staff members, including all department heads and executive officers.

Only municipal manager Bill Tremayne and engineer Cliff Warren will receive less than the eight per cent. Their salary scales are such that their pay raises are limited to $2,400 a year, the maximum allowed under Anti-Inflation Board guidelines.

The salary increases for the exempt staff compares with a six per cent pay hike union employees received in the last negotiated contract.

Tremayne noted, however, that union pay increases averaged out over the whole year work out to 8.23 per cent.

Summer Job Openings Soon As 6,000 Young Seek Work

About 6,000 young people are actively seeking work in Victoria and 1,200 will find jobs before the summer is over, Student Canada Manpower manager Randy Wittchen said today.

Most of the employment will come from odd jobs, gardening and housework, but about 400 will be regular employment.

"At this time of year some students who are working begin thinking about taking a holiday. Within the next week some will announce they are finished for the summer. This creates openings for other young people," Wittchen said.

"Some young people who were looking for work in June have given up now. But jobs will become available within a week or two on a replacement basis."

Wages, however, will be $3 to $4 per hour.

"Some young people come in with an exaggerated estimate of their worth as an employee," Wittchen said.

"They ask for $5 or $6 an hour to start, although they have no skills to offer. I had one 15-year-old come in with his father and the father announced that none of our jobs was suitable because they didn't pay enough. The father said it wasn't worth his son's while to work for less than $5 an hour."

Some students have expressed similar sentiments but fortunately these are the minority. Most young people seem to be fairly realistic and they can see the value of working for low wages to gain experience."

One of the most successful jobfinders is a 14-year-old boy with no job experience who has found steady employment through a series of odd jobs.

"He comes in every day and finds something. We get excellent reports back from his employers. But I am not surprised. We find that those people who are the most energetic seeking work will also be the best employees on the job."

Wittchen said some young people have, in effect, formed little companies offering their services to a number of regular customers as gardeners.

Householder jobs are the main opportunities available for students, along with the replacement work that will become available soon, he said.

The Student Canada Manpower office at 2633 Douglas has about 200 young people coming in daily studying an average of 80 posted jobs.

The office has an active file of 3,000 looking for work and estimates that there are at least 3,000 other young job-hunters in the city.

Of the 1,200 jobs that will become available for young people in July and August, about 600 will be handled through the Student Canada Manpower office, Wittchen said.

Householders with jobs to offer can phone the office at 388-3453. Job-hunters, however, should come in rather than phone, Wittchen said.

"People who are really serious about finding work come in at least once a day. Sooner or later they find something."

Public Kept in Dark on Broadmead?

The public is being kept in the dark about a massive shopping centre planned for the Broadmead area, Bill Neilson, president of the Broadmead Ratepayers' Association, said Monday.

He told Saanich council his group and adjacent communities "want everything on the table and out in the open."

"We want to see the details of negotiations being developed, members of council and municipal staff."

He said there have been too many secret meetings and complained his association has not received any information about the proposal which would see "The Bay and Broadmead Farms Ltd. combine to build a 400,000-square-foot shopping centre. It would be the largest on Vancouver Island."

"Given the present state of information and analysis we are forced to take a critical and apprehensive stance," he said.

During the council meeting, two letters from The Bay were received and filed. One letter noted traffic engineering studies relating to the development of the 35-acre site are "well advanced" but gave no details and suggested a schedule of timing which mentioned Sept. 26 as the date for a public hearing.

The other letter referred to the completion of a retail marketing study by an independent group which "confirmed our own research ... that the site is optimally located for a regional shopping centre." Details of the study were not released.

The letter also noted negotiations are under way with Eaton's for a store at Broadmead, and targeted the opening of the new Bay store by 1980-81 and Eaton's a year later.

Council unanimously decided against any action on the shopping centre proposal at this time but assurances were given that the matter will be reviewed by the lands, planning and housing committee on Aug. 23.

HOT READING AT LIBRARY

Some like it hot, but not as hot as it gets in the new Nellie McClung library at Cedar Hill and McKenzie.

Seems the designers forgot a few things, like cross-air ventilation and how to dissipate the heat from the sun's rays streaming through a large skylight in the roof. On sunny days everybody sweaters. It was so bad Friday—with the thermometer hitting 90—the library closed early.

A month ago Saanich municipality asked the library's architect to work out a solution and on Monday council learned what it entailed.

Three things could be done, the architect said. A film could be applied to the skylight to cut down the penetration of the sun's rays. A separate switch could be put in to turn off the lights near the skylight during the daytime. And new windows could be put in that would open and allow ventilation.

Council appeared only lukewarm to the final item with an anticipated bill of $4,296, but agreed to authorize spending up to $4,000.

The matter passed without heated debate.

ABRIDGED MIKADO HAS PROPER SPIRIT

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Gilbert and Sullivan, even abridged and rigidly budgeted, is okay with its many admirers as long as the proper spirit is evoked and some of the favorite bits are missing.

Four Seasons Musical Theatre's version of The Mikado, on that score, will be enjoyed by most audiences.

It's one of three Four Seasons shows playing through Aug. 20 at the Provincial Museum's Newcombe Auditorium, and while not precisely vintage G and S it is G and S a la mode. In other words, the performance style is there, being well understood by all the company starting with director Peter Manning and spirited accompanist-arranger Marge Adelberg.

There are good voices in the cast — Nan Long with her delicately colored, graceful rendering of The Sun Whose Rays; David MacIntyre's lyrical tenor enhancing a suitably romantic presence with A Wandering Minstrel and John Pugh's sturdy baritone, a real discovery with his effective performance of the pompous Pooch-Ba.

Janie Woods Morris provides striking acting ability in addition to a strong clear voice, establishing needed accents with her well-timed asides. Greater vocal strength than Ray and Helen Middleton bring to the roles of the Mikado and Katisha is desirable, and yet Ray's My Object All Sublime was a highlight, well-conceived and proportioned to his vocal range.

Both Middletons did their full share in maintaining the style and character of the piece, being obvious veterans of the G and S tradition.

All Gilbert's librettos have a clown as a central figure — clowns who have created such famous English stage figures as Sir Henry Lytton and Martyn Greene through the years.

Ko-Ko, Lord High Executioner of Titipu, is such a one.

In John Heath, co-stager of the three shows, the company has a talented actor with the true clown instincts; that sense of the ridiculous coupled with an underlying poignancy.

His antics as Ko-Ko are a delight, well timed and disciplined, accentuating the character but never distracting. He also has a strong voice and excellent diction in singing Tit-Willow and I've Got a Little List.

Visually the show is flawed by an over-use of fans fluttering, clicking and chopping, but mostly by scenic units which do nothing at all other than rather crudely symbolizing Japan. The show would be better off with nothing but curtains and a little bamboo.

The Mikado plays Mondays and Thursdays; Tuesdays and Fridays the company presents a Noel Coward evening and Wednesdays and Saturdays, Victorian Variety featuring music and songs of the Gay 90s.

LIEN ACT CHANGES ON WAY

Boat owners would be permitted to retain possession of their boats even if they are unable to pay for repairs under a bill introduced in the legislature Monday.

The measure was contained in an omnibus bill which includes changes to the Mechanics Lien Act and places boats and outboard motors in the same category as motor vehicles and aircraft.

This means that a lien can be registered against the boat or motor without having to keep it in storage.

"These amendments will make it possible for a fisherman, for example, to get his boat back after the motor has been repaired so that he can use it to catch fish so he can pay for the repairs, if he is without funds and cannot negotiate a loan," said Attorney-General Garde Gardom who introduced the legislation.

Currently, the mechanic must keep the goods in storage, while awaiting payment which means an increase in costs for that storage.

Oakalla Escapes Studied

Attorney-General Garde Gardom said Monday his ministry is taking steps to help cut down the number of escapes from the Oakalla jail in Burnaby.

Gardom said that for the year ended March 31 there have been 42 escapes from the provincial institution, compared with 29 the year before. In other B.C. institutions, escapes were reduced by 20 per cent.

The attorney-general said that to ease the problem his ministry is increasing the availability of staff training programs, using metal detectors, reorganizing senior personnel and allowing the population at the prison to drop. Another remand centre in the Vancouver area is being readied to decrease the load on the prison.

Gardom said the escape record at the prison is due to it being outdated, overcrowded, understaffed, and forced to deal with the overload from the federal British Columbia penitentiary in New Westminster.

The attorney-general said that in the last two months, the population at the prison has decreased to about 550 from about 700.

The clinic Wednesday is at the University of Victoria's Student Union Building, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Hospital Work Contract Let

The provincial government has awarded a $13.7 million contract to Cana Construction Co. Ltd. for expansion of Lions Gate Hospital in North Vancouver.

Health Minister Bob McClelland said Monday this is the first major expansion of diagnostic, treatment, and other services since the hospital was built in 1961.

No Business Interfering, Smith Warns Legislature

Speaker Ed Smith told the legislature Monday he has no business interfering in the affairs of its committees.

Liberal leader Gordon Gibson asked the Speaker July 12 to investigate charges that the government is trying to destroy the effectiveness of the legislature's public accounts committee.

The move came after the Social Credit majority approved a motion requiring that witnesses be called only according to an agenda agreed to by the whole committee, stopping chairman Dave Stupich, (NDP—Nanaimo) from calling witnesses by himself.

Smith ruled that questions of procedure arising in committee "are not to be raised in the house by way of points of privilege as they are points of order to be dealt with in committee."

He also said the Speaker is "always ready to advise members of all parties who consult him privately."

Smith said legislature rules permit the committee chairman and members to summons a witness without instructions from the committee, but whether the witnesses will be heard is for the committee to decide.

Gibson told the Speaker the motion emasculated the chairman and is subversive to the work of the committee, charged with investigating government spending. Smith agreed the committee has the right to order the destruction of its

Murdoch . . . riding hobbyhorse

... An Active Retirement

George Murdoch, a former reeve of Oak Bay has only one suggestion for people who want to keep fit when they retire.

"Choose a hobby and ride it to death," he said.

A man who practises what he preaches, Murdoch, 84, many years ago chose climate as a hobby and established a small weather station at his home, 2240 Beach Drive.

It was built mostly by himself and today is regarded as one of the best in B.C. operated by a volunteer weather observer.

His services have so impressed the Atmospheric Environment Service that he will be presented with some new sensitive instruments for his station.

He was first appointed observer in 1970 and was asked to measure the rainfall in his garden. There are several such volunteers in Greater Victoria providing various data to the Gonzales weather station.

Murdoch was provided with a standard rain gauge for his work, but he wasn't satisfied with being limited to measuring the rain. He wanted to know when the rain started and when it stopped. So he made and installed a device on the roof of his garage.

The device is ingenious. When rain starts, it trips a sensitive relay switch. This in turn activates a recorder that he built so that the times can be determined.

The recorder consists of a roll of one inch paper tape moving at the rate of six inches per 24 hours across a scale. An electric clock drives the mechanism and ensures accurate timing at the rate of 1/4-inch tape per hour.

Thus when the relay is activated, a stylus makes a mark on the tape ensuring a permanent record of all times the rain is falling.

Murdoch expanded his weather station, installing a wind vane and an anemometer for wind speed, as well as a number of thermometers to give him the temperatures in his garden.

He ended up with a small weather station which today provides all sorts of data to the professional weatherman.

"Weather has always interested me," he said. "It's a fascinating subject."

He said the data collected over the years indicate that the Willows Beach area is a little warmer than other areas and doesn't get the full blast of southwest storms.

"We seem to be just on the edge of the southwest storm area," he said. "So is the University of Victoria."

Murdoch has his own theory for some of the abnormal weather occurring in some areas of the world. "It seems to me that all this junk that man has sent into space must be affecting the weather," he said. "As you know the sun gives off magnetic radiation which affects people and climate, but some of this now is not getting through to the earth."

He said the magnetic radiation is reflected off the objects floating in space, instead of penetrating to the earth.

"There are more than 2,000 objects floating up there," he added. "It seems to be there must be some effects. It's a form of pollution."

Murdoch served 12 years as an Oak Bay councillor and five years as mayor. Prior to his service on council, he was a member of the police commission for four years.

Tough Secrecy Clamps Set on Medical Files

Health Minister Bob McClelland said Monday he is going to set up tough new controls to stop researchers from abusing confidential medical files.

McClelland said in an interview the move results from an incident reported last week in which researchers contacted former psychiatric patients using information contained in confidential files.

The minister said earlier in the house that confidential files of medical patients are often released to researchers.

"There have been many occasions where information such as that has been released to reliable research personnel," he said in answer to a question from Progressive Conservative leader Scott Wallace.

He said, however, that in the case in question, confidentiality was breached because the researchers contacted the patients directly, instead of obtaining follow-up information through doctors involved or acquaintances.

The minister said the research project was suspended immediately when it was found that the breach had taken place.

He said it is obvious that present safeguards against misuse of confidential files have not worked.

McClelland said he is going to ask all medical facilities in the province not to give material to researchers without first getting approval of the provincial government.

He said at present, researchers can obtain files from hospitals with only the hospital's consent, the patients and doctors involved having no say in the matter.

The minister said, however, that if any follow-up information is to be used or doctors are usually contacted to give permission. Such permission is usually obtained through the patient.

Wallace said in an interview that the current policy is foolhardy, and that institutions giving out confidential information are leaving themselves open to litigation.

He said it is a basic tenet of medicine that information on patients only be released after full, written consent of the patient had been obtained.

He said regardless of how the files were going to be used, access should not be given without permission.

Wallace, a medical doctor, said doctor-patient confiden-

The case in question involves a University of B.C. sociology professor and a graduate student who wanted to find out what happened to former patients of the now-defunct Hollywood Psychiatric Hospital of New Westminster.

The two obtained the files from the executive director of Riverview Hospital — where the files were moved — and the former patients were then phoned and asked for an interview.

CANADIANS GET OWN VACCINE

TORONTO (CP) — Connaught Laboratories Ltd. will provide a bivalent influenza vaccine for use in Canada in time for the fall and winter months when flu is prevalent.

Connaught said in a statement it has arranged for the vaccine supply to relieve Canada's dependence on foreign sources which embargoed shipments to this country during the swine flu scare last year.

The move is a response to the recommendation made by the national advisory committee on immunizing agents that such a vaccine be made available.

The company said the bivalent vaccine is designed to protect against both the A Victoria and B Hong Kong strains of influenza virus.

Each dose causes coughing, fever, headaches and can lead to serious complications for the elderly or those suffering from heart and lung diseases.

It said persons who received flu vaccines last year will require a vaccination with the new bivalent type to protect against this year's flu strains.

son-Creston) said 20 years of spraying had failed to solve the spruce budworm problem in New Brunswick but the minister said the budworm there is not the same as the local variety and the infested trees are not the same as those in B.C.

"Absolutely no comparison can be made between a spraying program in New Brunswick and that proposed for B.C."

Waterland pointed to the United States where the fires and the budworm are the same species as in B.C. "They have been spraying since the 1950s in Washington and Oregon, and they have found a method which is very effective — a 95-per-cent kill. This was the method we had planned to use."

Spray Deferred, Not Cancelled

Forests Minister Tom Waterland said Monday he is so convinced of the safety of a spray that was to be used against a spruce budworm infestation in the Fraser Canyon that planned to move his family into the area during the spraying.

He also told the legislature the spraying program has been deferred, not cancelled.

"At the present time, the best evidence provided by scientists shows there is no real hazard to people," the minister said. "I am so convinced of this that I offered and planned to move my family into the area during spraying, and my family is precious to me."

He said research shows the anti-budworm chemical Sevin-4 oil is safe "if the spraying is done properly," and he urged the legislature not to tie his hands in the fight against the spruce budworm.

He said spraying is the only solution to the problem which is "five times more than what is considered epidemic proportions."

"Please don't remove this very valuable tool until it can be replaced with something better."

The minister said that on both sides of the Fraser Canyon, from Yale to north of Boston Bar, there is a "very obvious red tinge to the trees."

The whole mountain side is red. In the Anderson range (where the spraying program was to take place before it was scrubbed by the cabinet after protests by environmentalists) some trees have been infested for two or three years."

Waterland offered to take opposition members by helicopter to view the infestation — at his own expense if necessary.

He said he viewed the infested area for three hours on Monday morning and found "hundreds of thousands of acres of timberland being devastated."

He also said the province depends on its forests too much to allow nature to take its course which would mean that the trees would be denuded, followed by "gigantic wild fires" to clean up the mess.

Waterland said other methods of control are being studied.

By LESTER COLEMAN, M.D.

My daughter is being treated with megavitamin therapy by someone who is not a doctor. I don't know what it means. I do know that all day long she pours vitamins into herself without having a decent meal. What do you think of this? — Mr. N.E.

Dear Mrs. B: I think, as most doctors do, that the megavitamin program is just another fad that attracts many devoted followers.

With this, as with other fads, it is almost impossible to argue with the enthusiastic followers.

I don't know what condition your daughter is being treated for, but if indeed she is being treated by someone who is not a doctor, this should be pursued through your local board of health or through the medical society in your community.

Perhaps the most definitive information that has come to my attention was published by Dr. Victor Herbert, of the Columbia University College of Physicians and Surgeons in New York. He says, "Megavitamin therapy is largely nutritional nonsense. Now, I know that some people won't agree, so I'd like to state why I believe megavitamin therapy — with a few rare exceptions — is not only nonsense, but potentially dangerous quackery."

Dr. Herbert feels that the enormous doses of vitamins used in this fad can produce a variety of symptoms. Overdoses with ascorbic acid (vitamin C) no longer act as a vitamin, but rather act as a chemical. In such doses it can that patients who have vitamin-dependent genetic diseases and defects in metabolism and problems of vitamin absorption might be benefited by the huge doses of vitamins used in megavitamin therapy. "Otherwise," he says, "I believe megavitamin therapy is without rational basis and may be harmful."

Although vitamins are undoubtedly valuable in well-controlled doses to supple-

produce ulcers of the stomach, liver damage and a wide variety of symptoms. Similarly, massive doses of vitamin D can be responsible for changes in the kidney, calcification of the joints, weakness and weight loss. Similarly, massive doses of vitamin E can cause headache, nausea, fatigue and blurred vision.

Dr. Herbert goes on to say ment the diet and maintain good nutrition, these enormous doses used in megavitamin therapy have all kinds of potential hazards resulting in overuse.

SPEAKING OF YOUR HEALTH... All teeth, even in the very young, should not be indiscriminately removed. Modern dentistry tries to preserve teeth as long as possible.

THE MOTHER EARTH NEWS

...it tells you how

how to use a sun compass

Even the best of the frontiersmen occasionally became lost in unfamiliar territory. If you ever find yourself in that predicament without a compass, here's how to use the sun to get your bearings.

Old Sol, as we all know, always rises in the east and sets in the west. It follows, then, that shadows move in exactly the opposite direction, and we can use that fact to plot true north any time the sun shines.

Find a stick about a yard long and push it into the center of a fairly level and brush-free spot of ground. The stick doesn't have to be vertical — you can incline it in any direction that gives you the most convenient shadow.

Once the stick is positioned, mark the tip of its shadow with a stone or twig. Then wait until the shadow's point has moved a few inches and put a second pebble or bit of wood on the ground to denote the new location. Finally, draw a straight line in the dirt from the first marker through and about a foot past the second.

If you'll then stand with the toe of your left foot at the first location point and the toe of your right foot at the end of the line you drew, you'll be facing true north. This line, in other words, runs directly east and west no matter where on the earth's surface you draw it. That alone, of course, won't get you home when you're lost, but it should orient you enough to help you get started in the right direction.

And if you're really lost, remember that your wisest course of action is no action at all. Just sit down, make yourself as comfortable as possible and wait for a rescue party to find you.

Part-Time Divorce

DEAR ABBY: I've been married for 16 years and have four children. The oldest is 15 and the baby is two. My husband (I'll call him "Joe") is an NCO in the U.S. Army. I thought our marriage was solid, but when he came home last month after serving 13 months in Korea, he seemed quiet and moody. Then he dropped a bombshell in my lap when he told me he had "fallen in love" with an 18-year-old Korean girl who is now four months pregnant with his child!

He says he loves me but can't turn his back on this girl because when she was 17, she had a baby by a Canadian soldier who deserted her.

Joe wants to divorce me, go back to Korea, marry this girl and bring her (and her child) here, so she can have her baby here. He says in time she may find another man to love and marry her, then he'll divorce her and marry me.

Joe is 38 and I am 35. I know he really loves me, but he feels guilty about what he did in Korea and takes pity on this girl. I told him I loved him too much to divorce him. (Was that wrong?)

I know if I let him go to marry her, he'll regret it later. What do you advise? — HEARTSICK

DEAR HEARTSICK: I think you're wise to hold off rushing into a divorce. Although Joe doesn't deserve any good conduct medals for his behavior in Korea, it's to his credit that he's willing to accept the responsibility for his actions.

An alternative plan would be to send the Korean girl money for her confinement and child support. It makes more sense than breaking up a 16-year-old, four-children marriage so that he can hastily marry an 18-year-old girl, divorce her later and remarry you again.

The word from here is to hang in there and keep your marriage intact. Good luck. Let me know what you decide to do. I care.

DEAR ABBY: SINGLE SIMON wrote to say that as a bachelor he is through accepting party invitations unless he can bring his own date. And you said that most hostesses invite bachelors to provide escorts for the single women.

The concept that most bachelors are invited to parties only to provide escorts for single women is a screaming insult to all single men!

Why must a party have an equal number of men and women? There is no need for a man or woman to feel out of place at a party without a partner unless, of course, the party is an orgy. — SINGLE BY CHOICE

DEAR SINGLE: For my part, guests should be invited to parties for their personalities — and not to balance the number of males and females.

(P.S. I've never attended an orgy, but I am under the impression that any number can play.)

DEAR ABBY: How can a woman tell for certain whether a man's proposal of marriage is sincere? — PROPOSED TO

DEAR PROPOSED: If a woman doesn't know a man well enough to know whether he's sincere or bluffing, she doesn't know him well enough to marry him.

DEAR ABBY: There is an old guy in our town who is driving everybody nuts. He's about 75 years old, and he can't keep his paws off women. No waitress will get within six feet of him. When he comes into the restaurant, the cashier has to take his order, and the cook comes out of the kitchen to serve it to him!

This guy went to a doctor for a checkup, and the nurse told me that if he ever came back, she was going to have a pair of handcuffs ready. Everybody in town knows about him. I can't understand why they let a man like that run loose. Isn't he dangerous? — PASO ROBLES

DEAR PASO: Probably not. If everybody in town knows about him, they're safe. It's the ones they don't know about who are dangerous.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "EAGER TO LEARN": To paraphrase an ancient Chinese proverb: "A single conversation across the table with a wise man (or woman) is worth a month's study of books."

Chance For Mary To Relax

AYR, Ont. (CP) — For 48 hours, Mary Harrison had the rare opportunity to let her hair down, put her feet up and let someone else do the cooking.

Mary and 31 other women spent the weekend at Restall Camp in Ayr, about 10 miles south of Kitchener, canoeing, swimming and relaxing at the Cambridge YWCA's second annual women's camp.

"I find it great that women are finally beginning to enjoy the company of other women," said Mrs. Harrison. "Before it was only men who did things like this in groups."

The theme of this year's camp, Bits and Pieces, was carried out through a personal growth workshop and various self-evaluation exercises.

"The assumption is that life is bits and pieces," said Marion Logan, YWCA executive director. "The question women face is how to put it all together for a feeling of oneness. Many have simply come to get away from it all, but one woman is reading a book on creative divorce."

Shirley Schultz, a student at Kitchener's Interfaith Counseling Centre, told women at the workshop they could choose to deny feelings of anger and frustration and continue to be unsure of their own identities, or they could accept the feelings and get their hearts and heads together.

Core Curriculum 'Spur to Dropout'

NAPANEE, Ont. (CP) — Introduction of a core curriculum into Ontario secondary schools may increase the dropout rate, says a board of education superintendent.

R. A. Dodds, who recently resigned as superintendent of the Lennox and Addington County school board to assume a similar position Sept. 1 with the Peel County board in Mississauga, predicted the dropout rate will grow among students in the four-year level of study.

In an interview he said: "There is little doubt in my mind, and I have the facts and statistics to support it, that the general-level student is not well provided for in the secondary-school system of this province."

"These students constitute a majority in our schools, yet in comparison with the academic elite, little is done for them. The majority of dropouts come from this group of youngsters."

"My fear is that recent decisions by the politicians to introduce core curriculum, core subjects and province-wide evaluation will provide additional hoops for these young people to jump through and our dropout rate will increase."

Dear Lynn and Joel: How do you feel about adding coffee to houseplants? I've been told they like some once in a while. —M.J.

Dear M.J.: We don't recommend feeding plants anything but regular fertilizer. However, coffee grounds are of value as a soil conditioner. They contain as much as 2 percent nitrogen, smaller amount of phosphoric acid and varying amounts of potash.

Grounds sour easily because they preserve moisture well and seem to encourage acid-forming bacteria. Generally, it's best to mix them with other waste materials for a mulch.

In order to have coffee grounds, there has to be coffee. And when there's coffee, there's someone to drink it — and that can be a problem. We all know what coffee does to us humans — boing!

You might want to use coffee as a hair rinse: then the grounds can be utilized for the benefit of our green friends.

OFF THE WALL

Louise DeGrave

I have often said to Ralph that it's the accumulation of the little annoyances in life, rather than the major catastrophes, that will eventually do me in.

When you suffer a real, heavy-duty disaster, friends and families are mobilized to help. But where are they when you have an absolutely rotten day at the office, come home and find the freezer door has been left open all day and that you have unintentionally thawed a great deal more for dinner than you had supposed? (Your husband then wants to know why you're such a grouch.)

A week ago, I received in the mail what I considered to be a superlative Statement of the Human Condition in 1977. Its author is a young lawyer, mother of two small boys, married to a physician just out of training. Liz usually writes your basic cheery letter, but this one, I felt, deserved to be immortalized so that future historians, when they search for the prevalent disease that eroded the spirit and mental health of America, will discover that it was not the breakdown of morals or religious beliefs or the family unit. It was the Mid-Winter Blahs.

Dear Louise and Ralph: The urge to write you tonight arose, interestingly enough, as I was trying to get to sleep but was instead considering the incredible series of mishaps this past winter has been.

David fell off George's shoulders onto the ice, requiring 14 stitches on his forehead. George labored all through January agonizing over his Career Development

Grant application; I labored all through January over my first real trial. We discovered a mouse in the house; we all got conjunctivitis; we got a flat tire and were told it was a radial and that radials didn't get flat. We have had every variety of flu there is; I had such a bad cold for almost six weeks that I had to sleep sitting up, which gave me a headache during the day. We went to Delaware on the train this past weekend, picked up an intestinal flu from my sister's family, and George and Paul were sick on the train coming back — George discreetly in the john and Paul dramatically all over the nice, new Amtrak seats. David has athlete's foot; George sprained his ankle sliding off the porch in the snow; the other family in the nursery school carpool is pulling out; our Christmas tree still has its lights on it; a squirrel is eating all the birdseed outside that the mouse didn't eat inside; the heat keeps going off; the weather is MISERABLE; the baby sitter-housekeeper was on vacation one week and sick the next so the house degenerated into a pigsty; my house plants are all dying (partly because George accidentally knocked them all off the windowsill one morning); my pantofoles all have runs; my fingernails keep breaking; the stereo is broken, and I've discovered two pimples among the wrinkles.

All is not bleak. Just damn difficult.

LITTLE PEOPLE'S PUZZLE

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By SYDNEY OMARR
Astrological Forecast for Wednesday, July 20

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You gain rare insights—inspiration could be part of scenario. Means you perceive, know without formal knowledge, sense what is to occur—yourself. Yes, a mystical experience could occur and is likely to be valid. Pisces is involved.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Key is to organize facts. Business opportunity might present itself—and you should have basic information available. Capricorn, Cancer figure prominently—so does the number "8". You make solid impression and you're able to imprint style. Emotional involvement commands huge portion of spotlight.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You have chance to be rid of burden, situation that causes emotional stress, financial drain. Know when it is time to "let go." It is time! Aries, Libra figure in scenario. Fulfillment of ambition depends on legal maneuver, grasp long-range view.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Promise that has been "hanging," should be examined for content, substance. If relative is involved, insist on new deal. Important for you to express ideas, desires. One emotionally involved with you wants to fit in with your plans.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Follow through on hunch—learn by teaching. Deal with Aquarian. Accent on matters concerning money of others, including inheritance, unique tax structure. One close to you seeks reassurance concerning basic security. Your position is stronger than it might appear on surface. You could be due for financial windfall!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Opportunity knocks—timing improves, expand horizons—socialize, make contacts. Popularity increases. Legal decision proves favorable. What had seemed an irreconcilable difference will be resolved. Gemini, Sagittarius persons could be in picture.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Check details behind scenes. If thorough, you are able to correct past mistakes—and to locate lost objects. Aquarius, Taurus and Scorpio persons could be part of your personal scenario. What begins as a "cloudy" situation becomes crystal-clear. You'll be enlightened.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Change of scenery could be on agenda. Gain indicated through "written word." Gemini, Virgo persons play key roles. Accent on friends, desires, developing viable concepts. In matters of speculation, stick to number "5."

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Major decision concerning "location" is due. Where to go, direction to take, where to reside—these all command more-than-usual attention. Taurus, Libra figure prominently. One "at top" is willing to make room for you. Know it and be confident.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Nebulous promise is not a commitment—know it and insist on factual information. Don't sell yourself short. Self-esteem now is your ally. Know it and stand tall. Avoid self-deception. See places, people as they are, not merely as you wish they might be.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Involvement is keynoted. Nothing is halfway—there is additional responsibility, intensification of relationship—money and love mix and it will be exciting. Dig deep for information. Analyze your own feelings, responses.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Finish what is underway as contrasted to initiating a project. Legal clearance is required—and you'll get it. Someone "up there" does like you! Aries, Libra and Sagittarius figure in scenario. Yes, you did make an impression—an impact is more like it!

IF JULY 20th IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, you are sensitive, a dramatic person capable of winning your way as opposed to forcing others to comply. Capricorn, Scorpio persons play important roles in your life. You made serious decision concerning where you live—whether to move, buy, change, separate, reconcile—and September will be your most important month where this is concerned. You love food, at times you over-indulge, you are fond of jewelry—you adore luxury and find it exciting to entertain and feed your associates and friends.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

All bridge players, at one time or another, have overbid their hands, with the consequence of their actions being costly. But there have been times when the failure to bid has been just as costly as bidding too much. Today's deal is submitted in substantiation of this latter point.

1 ♠ Pass 2 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass 3 ♠ Pass
4 ♠ Pass 4 NT Pass
5 ♠ Pass 6 ♠ Pass
Pass Pass

Opening lead: Nine of ♠.

The North-South bidding was very sound, but as the adversely held cards were distributed, the slam could have been defeated. But the defenders slipped.

On the face of it, the play appears to be perfectly normal, with West guessing to open a heart. Declarer now romped home with his contract.

East erred when he passed South's six-spade bid. He should have doubled. Had he done so, he would have been commanding West to lead a diamond, dummy's first-bid suit. As is evident, East would have ruffed the opening diamond lead, after which his ace of clubs would have taken the setting trick.

East's failure to double can be attributed to one of two reasons, the first of which can be justified, while the second cannot. Either he was not familiar with the convention that a double of a slam contract demands that the doubler's partner should lead the first suit bid by dummy. Or he was familiar with the convention, but he had no guarantee that his club ace would win a trick. But the fact is that by doubling he would have gained a trick which he otherwise could not make. And he should have been willing to take the gamble that his ace of clubs would win a trick.

Actually, if East had given a thought to the North-South bidding, he would have known that his club ace almost surely would win a trick. The reason for the "almost surely" is this:

South had bid four no-trump as the initiation of the Blackwood Slam Convention. Blackwood is just about never employed when one is void of a suit. Thus South had at least one club in his hand. And so unless North, by some freak of chance, were void of clubs, a double by East figured to defeat the contract.

Coroner Urges Sterilization

TORONTO (CP) — A coroner and Crown Attorney recommended on Monday compulsory sterilization for a woman who had three of her five children die.

Coroner Elie Cass and Crown counsel Michael Morse told a coroner's jury investigating the death last March 2 of one-month-old Vicky Ellis not to be daunted by the implications of such a recommendation, one of 18 made by Dr. Cass. Throughout the inquest, Deborah Ellis, 28, has said she intends to have more children.

The state cannot order compulsory sterilization. Evidence presented during the four-week inquest has shown that Parrish Ellis, 16 months, died unattended in a bathtub in May, 1975. Darlene Ellis, 11 months, died from chronic dehydration and choking on vomit in July, 1972. Vicky's death was attributed to a bowel disorder and possible infection.

The jury was also told that two other Ellis children, Brooks Jr. and Charlene, were made wards of the province because their mother abused and neglected them.

Robert Falby, counsel for social worker Ruth Parry and the Clarke Institute of Psychiatry, asked the jury to recommend future inquests involving mentally-disturbed individuals like Mrs. Ellis and her husband, Brooks, 23, be held in camera. Falby said he made the recommendation because the man had taken an overdose of drugs after published reports about his sadomasochistic relationship with his wife.

However, Dr. Cass told the jury to ignore the recommendation. Only inquests involving issues of national security now are held in camera. Sheldon Pettie, counsel for the Ellises, asked that the jury not consider the parents guilty of neglecting Vicky. He said they had done what they

VIETNAM, LAOS SIGN TREATIES

BANGKOK (WP) — The leaders of Vietnam and Laos signed three treaties Monday, giving formal status to the extremely close relationship between the two Communist neighbors since the end of the war in Indochina.

The accords — one of friendship and co-operation, a second providing for three years of Vietnamese economic assistance to Laos, the third defining the Vietnamese-Lao border — were signed in Vietnamese by the Communist party leaders and prime ministers of the two countries. They also signed a joint communiqué.

The Vietnamese delegation, led by Communist party general secretary Le Duan and Prime Minister Pham Van Dong, was the highest-ranking Vietnamese team ever to travel abroad. The Laotian side was led by Prime Minister and party general secretary Kaysone Phomvihane.

In speeches throughout the four-day visit leaders of both sides stressed their like-mindedness. Sunday night, for example, Le Duan told guests at a farewell banquet, "We were very glad to note that the two sides saw eye-to-eye on all questions. The joint statement to be released soon will be a brilliant expression of the especially pure and extremely solid relations between our two parties and people."

CUPE DISCUSSES JOBS

A secret ballot by membership of Greater Victoria School District maintenance union will decide action on a dispute over job security.

Canadian Union of Public Employees Local 382 spokesman Bob Cunningham said today a special meeting of the 300-member unit has been called for 7:30 p.m. Monday in the Union Centre to discuss options outlined to the union executive and bargaining committee in consultation with legal counsel Monday night.

Cunningham said it would be unfair to disclose the options and executive recommendation before they are presented to the membership, but he said the local can accept or reject the contract which has been put forward by Greater Victoria Labor Relations Association, representing School District 61.

The contract contains no job security clause and would provide for contracting out of work now performed by union members.

Cunningham said only about 20 per cent of the members are on annual vacation and expected a substantial turnout at the meeting.

GVLRA said the school board would not contract out jobs but would require fewer maintenance men due to smaller enrolments.

Apartment Rezoning Under Study

A study of the way land in Saanich is rezoned for apartment use is being carried out by the municipal planning department, Saanich council learned Monday.

Ald. Fred Severson said planner Gil Laurensen has been asked to prepare a report for presentation at a meeting of the lands, planning and housing committee on Aug. 23.

The report will review all past rezoning in connection with apartment use in Saanich and propose a draft policy statement for council.

Severson mentioned the study after Ald. Ian Cass complained the municipality doesn't have a comprehensive policy on higher density rezoning and urged the lands planning and housing committee to prepare one.

Pony Express vs. Post Office Race Begins

MELITA, Man. (CP) — The Melita-to-Morris pony express, a three-way race involving horses, cyclists and the Canadian postal service, got under way on schedule today.

Sharp at 8:30 a.m. EDT Neil Penner of Mordey, one of 13 express riders, galloped from in front of the post office down Main St. and headed for Highway 3 and Morris, 200 miles to the east.

In his saddle bags was a copy of the New Era, the community newspaper that serves the area surrounding this southwestern Manitoba town of 1,400.

The express riders, operating in five-mile relays with trailers ferrying the mounts between starting points, were to pick up newspapers from eight other towns along the way.

As Penner began the run, the temperature was 15 degrees under partly cloudy skies with light winds from the north.

Those winds will be critical for Stan Sterling, who along with eight others, is making an identical mail run for the post office—on bicycles.

The pony express riders, members of the Agassiz Arabian Horse Club, feel that in the absence of strong southeast winds, the cyclists have a clear edge.

Cyclist Peter Baynton of Winnipeg said his team expected to average 15 to 18 miles an hour, arriving in Morris some time tonight. The equestrian contingent is expected to travel 10 to 15 miles an hour and slower after dark. It is unlikely to end its run before midnight.

Melita mayor Gerry Morrow handed copies of the paper to Penner and Sterling, then dropped a third copy into the mail box of the local post office.

The post office recruited the bike riders from Winnipeg and Brandon cycle clubs after the Manitoba Community Newspapers Association contended a pony express could get the mail from Melita to Morris faster than the regular mail service.

The post office accepted the challenge but added the bikers because it has a serious time handicap—mail doesn't leave Melita until 6:35 p.m. and is scheduled to arrive at Morris around 4:30 a.m. Wednesday after following a circuitous 300-mile route. Even then, its pickup and delivery service will have to be perfect at each of the nine stops, with the papers sorted on arrival and ready for pickup.

CHIP QUOTA VETO

The provincial government is not prepared to set up a quota system for the sale of wood chips in the province, Forests Minister Tom Waterland told the legislature Monday night.

Forestry critic Bill King (NDP—Revelstoke-Slocan) suggested the quota system after saying smaller operators are having difficulty finding a firm market for their chips.

The large, integrated firms can dictate who survives in the forest industry by determining the amount of chips that they will accept from a small sawmill, he said.

King said a quota system would be more economically sound, requiring the large integrated firms, the pulp mills basically, to accept "on a fair, perhaps rotational basis or quota basis, a supply of chips from all operators."

Waterland agreed there is a surplus of wood chips—about one million units—which he is trying to get rid of through exports.

He said the companies are co-operating to eliminate inequities that exist in the distribution of wood chips.

Many of the smaller companies have voluntarily not enforced contracts which they had to help companies which do not have contracts and many large firms have cut down purchases from their subsidiaries to purchase from other companies.

The major problem, he said, is transportation between the small, independent companies which are a long distance from the point of consumption of chips.

Peninsula Water Costs '$2 a 1,000 Gallons'

The cost of delivering water through a new pipeline to Saanich Peninsula municipalities might be trimmed to $1.22 per 1,000 gallons, but municipal costs will likely push it close to $2 for residents.

That's the view of Jim Cumming, chairman of the Saanich Peninsula water commission, who said today that, trying to figure what water will cost householders on the peninsula through the new pipeline is anybody's guess until the amount of debt incurred in building the pipeline is known.

Residents without their own wells now pay between $1.60 and $2 per 1,000 gallons and farmers in particular are worrying about the future cost of water for irrigation.

Municipal Affairs Minister Hugh Curtis said Monday that revised figures have trimmed water costs from $2 to $1.22 per 1,000 gallons and it may be possible to pare them further.

The new estimates are based on:

- an 18-cent per 1,000 gallons basic charge to all customers;
- for peninsula users, another 12 cents for buying into the existing system of the Greater Victoria water district;

—59 cents for financing the estimated $4.4 million trunk line to be built up the peninsula as well as refinancing earlier loans;

—33 cents for trunk services.

Curtis said the new water line may be financed in part through the provincial government's water assistance program.

Cumming said earlier it may be possible to provide farmers with cheaper irrigation water when the pipeline has been built by supplying them, from wells and Elk Lake, sources which in the past were used to deliver domestic water.

Student Shift Battle

Saanich school trustees will wrestle again with a decision of which students will be relegated to the afternoon shift at Mount Newton school.

While awaiting completion of the new Stelly's Cross Road school in October students will go in shifts to Mount Newton junior secondary.

But both the junior students and the senior ones want the morning shift.

Early indications that the junior students would get the morning shift were changed when trustees heard an appeal by senior students that they would lose their after-school jobs if they had to go to school until 5 p.m.

So trustees agreed to let them have the morning shift and send the junior students in the afternoon.

But the parents of the junior students argued that the younger children would have less energy for learning in the afternoons.

Parents said the afternoon job argument of the older students was irrelevant, and suggested all they did with the money was buy cigarettes, fast cars and drugs. Trustees called a special meeting Aug. 8 to reconsider the decision.

The Brace Institute in Montreal received $5,000 to help it cope with increasing requests for information and deal with international information exchanges.

The Biomass Energy Institute, also in Winnipeg, received $5,000 to help it meet demands for information on biomass energy.

Thalidomide Firm Pays Record Award

VANCOUVER (CP) — The largest single thalidomide judgment ever against a drug company has been settled for $985,000 in favor of a 14-year-old Kelowna girl.

B.C. Supreme Court Chief Justice Nathan Nemetz approved the settlement, in U.S. funds, against the drug manufacturing company Richardson-Merrell.

Names of the girl and her foster mother are being withheld.

The settlement also has been approved by public trustee C. W. Foote, who will administer the money.

It is estimated the girl will receive about $750,000 in Canadian funds after all legal fees and other costs have been paid.

According to lawyer Thomas Griffiths, who brought the action against the drug company, it is the largest individual thalidomide judgment yet awarded.

He told the court that the girl is mentally retarded as the result of her mother's taking of the drug and will never be able to manage her affairs.

He said the girl's foster mother is better suited to continue as her guardian than an institution.

"I believe this foster mother has made every sacrifice and has done everything possible in her means for the child's happiness."

He said this continued loving care would provide as comfortable and useful a future as possible.

Although the actual settlement was made in an Ohio court, it had to be approved here because an infant was involved.

Thalidomide was used widely as a tranquillizer between 1958 and 1961 and caused a number of serious defects to children of pregnant women who took the drug.

Rationing Ready

Times Ottawa Bureau
OTTAWA — A contingency plan for gasoline rationing in Canada has been drawn up, is now completed, and can be put into force if and when it is required, Energy Minister Alastair Gillespie told the Commons Monday.

Soon after the embargo in 1973 work was started on the rationing plan for Canada. It was prepared in the event that there would be insufficient supplies to meet all needs as a result of the embargo or for other reasons.

When the Emergency Supplies Allocation board completed its work a year ago the work on the contingency plan was set aside. It has now been completed, said the minister.

"It requires an act of the House of Commons to put it into force," he said.

Multiple Slayings Fear, Body Found

BULLETIN
CHILLIWACK (CP)—RCMP found a body in the Fraser River just before noon today, and the search for more bodies continues in what appears to be a multiple slaying Monday night.

Times News Services
CHILLIWACK — A massive air, ground and water search is underway in the Fraser Valley following the disappearance of four teenagers Monday night.

Police fear the four, three boys and a girl aged between 16 and 19, have been murdered.

Police said this morning that they had found a pickup truck taken from the site where the four disappeared.

The vehicle found at the Pacific Centre parkade in downtown Vancouver.

It has been taken to the RCMP crime lab for further examination.

The suspected felon is described as being six feet tall, slim and with shoulder-length black hair.

The investigation began Monday night when a fifth youth reported to police that he and four friends were gathered on the banks of the Fraser River about 10 miles east of here around 9:45 p.m.

When a man came up from behind them and began firing a rifle.

The youth told police he was able to flee and heard several more shots as he ran from the area.

When police arrived with tracking dogs, patches of blood and signs of violence were found on the river bank but there was no sign of the youths or their truck.

Police said the assailant may have killed all four and dumped their bodies or one or more may have been taken alive with him.

Manitoba Twister Kills 2

ROSA, Man. (CP) — Two people died and two others were critically injured Monday night when a tornado ripped a farmhouse off its foundations near this southern Manitoba community.

RCMP identified the dead as Mike Klem, 72, and his 58-year-old wife Katie. Their daughter Joanne Grenier, 22, and her 14-month-old daughter Tara were in critical condition today in St. Boniface General Hospital in Winnipeg.

The twister touched down about 8 p.m. CDT in an area several miles long and perhaps a mile wide about 50 miles south of Winnipeg.

Weather officials said the winds could have reached a peak force of 200 miles an hour.

The tornado lifted the Klem's house and deposited it several hundred yards away.

There was extensive damage to other property in the area, including houses and farm buildings. The tornado killed livestock, felled trees and hydro poles, flattened crops and peeled asphalt off Highway 59 near St. Malo and Rosa.

No other serious injuries were reported, and there was no early estimate of the amount of damage.

U.S. Dollar Slumps

FRANKFURT (Reuters) — The U.S. dollar fell lower on European foreign exchange markets today than it did four years ago when confidence was shaken by Watergate. On the Frankfurt exchange it dropped to its lowest-ever level there during nervous trading. In London, the dollar fell to 2.2600 marks at one stage as selling pressure spilled over from Frankfurt and operators switched mainly into marks.

SEATTLE (AP) — City council moved a step closer Monday to raising Ross Dam on the Skagit River. The council voted unanimously to accept a Federal Power Commission license to increase the height of the dam, while city officials continue negotiating a possible alternative with British Columbia officials.

Kerster Asking for Probe Into ICBC Document Leaks

Secured MLA George Kerster said Monday he will ask the attorney-general to investigate whether the NDP violated the confidentiality of Insurance Corp. of B.C. file documents.

"I think the public should be told," Kerster said late Monday after a day of questioning by opposition members about his involvement in the settlement of an ICBC claim with his old company, Surrey Dodge.

"It looks to me as though someone has violated that section and I think there should be a complete investigation," he said.

Dennis Cocke (NDP — New Westminster) earlier in the day tabled two internal ICBC documents which indicate a claim to Surrey Dodge has been paid out by ICBC, even though the company had not paid its $450 insurance premium.

Education Minister Pat McGeer, in charge of ICBC, said however, that although the premium had not been paid to the insurance agent involved, the money had been paid directly to ICBC.

He said Cocke's information came from a "stolen document" which turned out to be wrong.

The NDP has charged that Kerster improperly intervened in the settling of the claim with his old company.

Kerster headed the firm at the time of the incident which resulted in the claim, but stopped his involvement with it when elected in December, 1975.

McGeer accused Cocke of debasing the Legislature and of smearing Kerster by referring to the document which was based on incomplete, incorrect information.

The minister said it was unlawful to take such a confidential document from ICBC and Cocke is misleading the public.

McGeer tabled documents last week which contained a report of an investigation into allegations against Kerster.

The report says that "because of financial difficulties of the dealership, while the premium was paid to ICBC, it was not paid to the agent."

"I think that if the decision

Firearms Bill Passes

OTTAWA (CP) — Three years after it was first introduced, legislation to control the purchase and use of firearms received final approval Monday in the Commons.

The bill passed 95 to 40 with 30 Progressive Conservatives, eight New Democrats and two Social Crediters opposing the government. Max Saltzman (NDP — Waterloo-Cambridge) backed the government.

The bill now needs Senate approval and royal assent to become law.

Justice Minister Ron Basford made a last-minute concession to the vociferous opponents of the legislation by opening the final debate with a promise to delay proclamation of regulations on the purchase of guns until mid-1978.

Basford told the Commons the delay would permit extensive discussion with the provinces and other interested groups.

The legislation also toughens police power to wiretap telephones.

It extends to 60 days from the current 30 days the length of time police can tap a line with court permission and increases to three years from 90 days the time given to the police to notify people of taps.

Eldon Woolliams, the Conservative justice critic, called on Basford to stop his "false and misleading" statements that the legislation will end the killing of policemen.

"When they say this bill will stop murder, stop shooting, stop robbery with violence, they are misleading the people of Canada. Make no mistake about that."

HAIR-RAISING PROSPECT...

LONDON — Career women in modern Britain — under the added stress of looking after husbands and children — are growing hairy chests and hairy stomachs. They sometimes become lustful as well, just like the tired businessmen of contemporary myth.

These startling truths are attributed to Ivor Mills, professor of medicine at Cambridge University and a respectable endocrinologist of 56 who rates 22 lines in Who's Who.

The findings are sensational, says the current issue of Women's Own magazine which carries the story. But the magazine does wonder if Mills might not be an unconscious male chauvinist, trying to scare women back to the kitchen sink.

Mills finds that strain on a woman's brain is related to hormonal changes.

These include excess male hormone production.

He has begun to see patients in their 20s who have suddenly started growing excess facial hair. "It can be very distressing. Some women have to shave every day, others start growing hair on their breasts and abdomens."

Sometimes they develop aggressive tendencies and high sex drives.

With high hormone overproduction, voices deepen: "We have had a few singers who can't sing soprano any more."

Mills cites a case study of one, Margaret, a dynamic schoolteacher, who had to shave daily. Her husband was happy with her high sex drive, but she found it hard to conceive.

Eventually she succeeded, but when she went back to work she became irritable and hairy all over again.

A number of contradictions are mentioned. Sometimes, the findings show a decrease in male hormone production, leading to loss of libido and depression.

Mills advocates that the main solution is for women to insist that their husbands help more in the home.

It is an impeccably feminist conclusion. Women's Own leaves open the question of whether highly-stressed men suffer hormonal disturbances, such as becoming bald, twitchy, squeaky-voiced and impotent.

Mills was said by the magazine to be holidaying incommunicado in France, no doubt following his own wise prescription: "If a woman shows signs of stress, such as lack of sleep, irritability or compulsion to work, she should curtail her hours and allow herself some more rest, too."

It is vital that women recognize their limits before it's too late.

East Stifles In Heatwave

Times News Services

A "heat storm" fried most of the eastern two-thirds of Canada and the U.S. today.

Residents of New York city broiled in their seventh consecutive day of 33 degree (90 F) heat.

Monday the mercury there reached 38 (100 F), the hottest in 11 years.

Water Commissioner Charles Samowitz reimposed a water shortage alert and Consolidated Edison appealed to customers to conserve power. Officials worried the power drain could result in another massive blackout like last week's 26-hour ordeal.

In Ontario the current heat wave has killed thousands of turkeys and chickens, and farmers fear there will be more losses this week.

Turkey farmer Walter Metzger of Elmira, near Kitchener, said Monday that about five per cent of turkey flocks and 90 per cent of farmers' profits have been lost.

He said chicken farmers have lost 10 to 12 per cent of their flocks, and that both chicken and turkey farmers could be working for nothing this year.

Egg production probably will drop sharply in 10 days to two weeks, he added.

Bawlf Attacks Editorial

Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf said Monday he will consider legal action if there are any further "wholly unjustified attacks upon my probity and honor" in the media.

Bawlf was reacting specifically to an editorial in the Victoria Times July 14 which suggested that Attorney-General Garde Gardom should lay a charge against Bawlf and two other Social Credit members to allow the courts to determine whether they are sitting in the house illegally.

Times editor Barbara McLintock said today the editorial did not reflect in any way on the honor or integrity of Mr. Bawlf, or either of the other MLAs involved.

"It was made quite clear that none of the three had any intention of wrong-doing in the matter and it seems to me that has been accepted by everyone involved in the case," she said. "I don't really understand what Mr. Bawlf is so upset about."

Opposition members suggested last week that Bawlf, Agriculture Minister Jim Hewitt and Secured MLA George Kerster (Coquitlam) may be sitting illegally because of money paid to them last year to cover some expenses while participating in a government-sponsored housing committee.

The Constitution Act says MLAs can accept no money from the government other than their annual stipends.

Bawlf said the "smoke from the crossfire" between government and opposition on the issue has almost blotted out his personal position.

Bawlf said he was completely unaware of the manner in which the department of housing dealt with the expenses of the committee.

"Not one cent has ever gone into my pocket by reason of my membership on the committee," he said.

Municipal Affairs and Housing Minister Hugh Curtis told the legislature last week that expense money was paid out for the MLAs by mistake.

He confirmed that no money was paid personally to Bawlf, saying the money that was paid out went directly to hotels or other facilities involved.

Bawlf said the editorial in the Times demonstrates "a complete lack of understanding on the part of the newspaper, both of the law and the facts."

"In its self-righteous sensational commentary not only does it miss the point, but it smears my character."

Debate on the issue in the house cannot be prevented, Bawlf said.

"It does not follow, however, that I shall stand idly by whilst others outside the house gratuitously defame me."

"I have nothing to fear. I have nothing to hide. I am well content to abide by the decision of the house, or, should matters take that course, a decision in the courts," he said.

Bawlf said he would consider legal action if what he considers attacks continue.

Peking's Teng Back in Power

TOKYO (UPI) — Wall posters in Peking today reported the appointment of former deputy premier Teng Hsiao-ping as new vice-chairman of the Chinese Communist party, Kyodo News Service reported.

Bennett Forbids Family Hirings

Premier Bill Bennett Monday issued a directive forbidding his cabinet colleagues from hiring any members of their immediate families.

The directive will mean the firing of Michael McKelvey, executive assistant to his father-in-law Transport and Communications Minister Jack Davis.

Opposition members pounded their desks in approval as Bennett read his memo in the legislature.

He said later he defines immediate family as mother, father, brother, sister, son, daughter or anyone married to them.

The premier said the memo does not affect his own executive assistant, Tony Tozer, whose brother is married to the premier's sister.

Neither does the memo affect Don Larsen, executive assistant to Highways and Public Works Minister Alex

Fraser. Larsen was once married to Fraser's foster daughter.

Opposition members complained last week that Davis' hiring of his son-in-law in the post of executive assistant was "nepotism, patronage and borders on corruption."

Davis confirmed he had hired McKelvey during his summer vacation from law school at Queen's University in Kingston, Ont.

"I am asking each minister to make sure that this problem or this situation does not exist in their ministry," the premier said.

Bennett said Tozer, his own assistant, is related through marriage to his sister, but not to him.

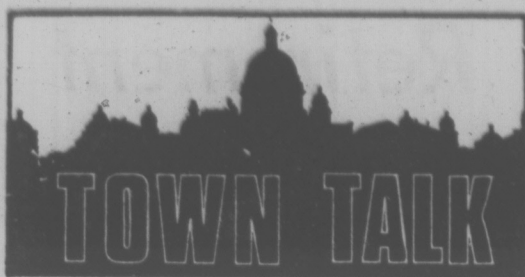

"And if my sister follows me into this job as the premier of this province, then she would probably be terminated," he said.

Davis was not available for comment.

Join the navy and see the world — or be a gourmet.
In the French navy it looks like food comes high on the list of priorities, judging from the menus aboard the weekend visitor to Esquimalt, Balny, a frigate based on Papeete, Tahiti.
Officers and crew are served the same food, such as asperges vinaigrette, jambon de parme cornichon, caille aux raisins, french fried potatoes, salad, cake and champagne; or filet de maquereaux vin blanc, viande froide mayonnaise, french fries, salad, cheese plate and dessert. And beverage includes beer or wine.

Ever heard of a banana-gram?
Actually we just made that word up but maybe it's what Rudy Burke of 853 Douglas has got.
He bought a bunch of green bananas recently and was startled to find a sort of message on one as they ripened — the letters "F.C." appeared in brown as the bananas turned yellow. They had been carved and remained invisible while the banana was green.
"There has to be a reason," he says and speculates "is this person in trouble?"
The bananas probably came from the West Indies or Hawaii, he says and he wonders what's going on in the banana fields out there.
So all you banana eaters, keep an eye peeled for the next instalment and let us know.

McPherson: A Decade Of Change

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

In 10 years as manager of the city-owned McPherson Playhouse, John Dyck has experienced marked changes in the lifestyle of the city, its audiences and performers.
Audiences are getting younger, he says, and young people coming to events at the Mac have more than doubled. Perhaps because of that, dress habits have changed a lot.
"It's a matter of comfort and convenience and individual choice rather than convention now," he says. "But we do draw a line here and there. For sanitary reasons we don't allow bare feet in the theatre and shirts must be worn."

"If a young man comes to the theatre bare to the waist we send him off to get a shirt. It's a question of audience protection. What rules we have are for the benefit of the majority."
Another change is in the audience smoking pattern.
"There used to be a blue haze in the foyer after intermission when I was first here. Nowadays the only time the smoke is heavy is at a show catering to teen-agers."

At the beginning of the 60s, the then Empire Theatre on Government Street (sometime York, sometime Totem, and way back the Pantages) was languishing in neglect, decaying in dust-filled, mouldy emptiness.
Today the comfortable 835-seat McPherson is considered a gem among small theatres by visiting artists and groups. Bequeathed to the city with funds for restoration by the late Thomas S. McPherson, it opened in 1965 after being renovated and developed to fit into the concept of Centennial Square.

The theatre recently entered a new and more comprehensive phase when the new McPherson Playhouse Foundation took over its operation.
Dyck points to changes already established, such as the arts and crafts gallery in the mezzanine lounge which provides free space for all community organizations, and the picture loan display from the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria which occupies the formerly dead foyer area at the back of the main floor auditorium.

The theatre is now open during the day to permit the public to view the displays. There is no charge. The new permanent location for wheelchairs in the main auditorium is another point of pride.

Dyck is the third person to hold the McPherson's manager position and is equipped for the role. Aside from an equable temperament and a poised and engaging personality, he has had a close personal involvement with the arts in addition to business experience.

Through high school and college years in Winnipeg, he played violin in orchestras and chamber ensembles and sang with choral groups, all of which convinced him that he wanted to commit his future to some area of the arts.
Common sense dictated that he enter the business world to gain experience and establish some financial security. So with a friend he formed several oil field supply and servicing companies with which he spent five years in northern B.C.

Returning to his first love, he successfully completed a battery of tests given by a firm of industrial psychologists which pointed him in the direction of administration. Several years were spent in Vancouver as general manager of Overture Concerts and from there he came to the McPherson.
When Dyck started his tenure the theatre could not be rented on Sundays because of the so-called blue laws. But that was changed and now Sunday is one of the most popular rental days.

"We have 55 Sunday bookings in 1977. Only two Sundays have not been used so far," he says.
Bar facilities, introduced after Dyck became manager, are growing in popularity but have never been troublesome.

Lawrence Eastick, 'an incredibly competent technical director'

he says. A theatre situation is a complex one always brewing some new hazard but the staff and I short-circuit many potential troubles," Dyck says.

"For example, young people's attention span is very short (probably thanks to television) but we ward off disturbance to patrons caused by constant movement in and out of the auditorium by closing off the concessions during performance. Also anyone coming out of the auditorium is not allowed back in until an intermission."

The McPherson staff is capable and supportive, he says. Lawrence Eastick, in his 11th year at the theatre as stage manager, has a new title too.

"He's an incredibly competent technical director," says Dyck. "He continues to provide service well beyond the call, both to management and public."

Dyck says the staff's enthusiasm and creativity in coming forward with ideas has increased markedly under the foundation which has been in effect just four months.

The brainchild of Community Arts Council president Allan M. Purdy, the foundation has taken over operation of the theatre on a lease arrangement with city council. Council, in Dyck's view, "showed great vision in giving the concept their unanimous endorsement."

"We, and particularly Purdy and I, work extremely well together," Dyck says. He describes Purdy as having the catalytic qualities which stimulate the arts and make things happen.

Among improvements already made is the carpeting which has been extended throughout the foyer and the two handsome display units which inform the visitor on current and coming activity.

In the works are plans to link the box office with a computerized operation which will greatly improve its services; establishment of a club lounge in the upper foyer; free noon-hour concerts through the fall and winter, children's shows and arts seminars.

Dyck has an understandable enthusiasm for a foundation project that will see television monitors mounted in the lobbies.

"These will help solve our problem with late-comers who will be able to follow the show until a convenient time occurs for them to take their seats."

"Access to various levels of grants and donated goods and services enables the foundation to operate the McPherson with greater economy than before," Dyck says.
Donations so far, aside from the provincial government's start-up grant of $10,000, have included goods and services, among them the lobby display units and the donors' and directors' panel on the foyer wall.

"We're planning to mount fund raising benefit concerts for the theatre and an annual arts auction. The auction would be similar to the Poncecho Program in Seattle which generates in the neighborhood of $200,000 for the arts."

There is more, a great deal more in the program — ideas to serve the community on an even broader scale and plans for upgrading the efficiency of the stage area.
"If the first 10 years saw changes," says executive director Dyck, "the next 10 will see many more, most of them hopefully, steadily improving the theatre's impact on the public."

He sees Purdy's concept and its fulfillment through the foundation as providing the fullest interpretation of the terms of the McPherson bequest which asked that the theatre "be made available to the widest benefit of the citizens of the metropolitan area."

Fatal Oak Bay Fire Blamed on Cigarette

A carelessly placed cigarette caused a fire that took the life of a 53-year-old woman in Oak Bay Monday night, Oak Bay fire chief Fred Leeke said today.
Leeke said Mary Sands, wife of Victoria funeral director Laverne Sands, died of apparent cardiac arrest while trying to escape the fire which broke out at 3166 Westdowne at about 8:30 p.m.
He said the fire originated in a bed in a bedroom at the rear of the single-storey house and felt there could be no other explanation than careless smoking. Mrs. Sands, who was alone at the time, was a smoker, he added.
Firemen found her body on the kitchen floor near a back door. She was dressed in night clothing, showed no signs of being burned and apparently had collapsed from the fumes as she tried to get out of the house, Leeke said.

Efforts were made to revive her but she was pronounced dead on arrival at Royal Jubilee Hospital.
Leeke estimated about $30,000 damage was done to the house which was gutted in the rear and extensively damaged by smoke.
The chief said when firemen arrived they connected lines to a hydrant on Henderson that was temporarily out of service, and had to use a backup hydrant on Westdowne a short distance from the house.
The delay caused no problems in the fire-fighting operations because firemen used the water in the pumps until the backup lines were connected.

Leeke said only three of the 360 hydrants in Oak Bay are temporarily out of service and the one on Henderson was coincidentally one of them. It had sprung a leak and firemen are awaiting delivery of new parts.
Leeke said firemen had the fire under control within 15 minutes and extinguished within an hour.
He said neighbors reported smelling smoke for about half an hour before the fire was detected but thought it was someone using an incinerator.
He said the fire must have smoldered for some time to generate such intense heat.
"There are so many synthetics used in homes these days that when there's a fire there are real problems with toxic gases given off," the chief said.

Saanich Staff Gets 8% Raise

Saanich council Monday approved an eight per cent pay raise for non-union members of the municipal staff.

The raises were recommended by council's personnel committee and apply to 46 staff members, including all department heads and executive officers.

Only municipal manager Bill Tremayne and engineer Cliff Warren will receive less than the eight per cent. Their salary scales are such that their pay raises are limited to $2,400 a year, the maximum allowed under Anti-Inflation Board guidelines.

The salary increases for the exempt staff compares with a six per cent pay hike union employees received in the last negotiated contract.

Tremayne noted, however, that union pay increases averaged out over the whole year work out to 8.23 per cent.

Summer Job Openings Soon As 6,000 Young Seek Work

About 6,000 young people are actively seeking work in Victoria and 1,200 will find jobs before the summer is over, Student Canada Manpower office manager Randy Wittchen said today.

Most of the employment will come from odd jobs, gardening and housework, but about 400 will be regular employment.

"At this time of year some students who are working begin thinking about taking a holiday. Within the next week some will announce they are finished for the summer. This creates openings for other young people," Wittchen said.
"Some young people who were looking for work in June have given up now. But jobs will become available within a week or two on a replacement basis."

Wages, however, will be $3 to $4 per hour.

"Some young people come in with an exaggerated estimate of their worth as an employee," Wittchen said.

"They ask for $5 or $6 an hour to start, although they have no skills to offer. I had one 15-year-old come in with his father and the father announced that none of our jobs was suitable because they didn't pay enough. The father said it wasn't worth his son's while to work for less than $5 an hour."

Some students have expressed similar sentiments but fortunately these are the minority. Most young people seem to be fairly realistic and they can see the value of working for low wages to gain experience."

One of the most successful jobfinders is a 14-year-old boy, with no job experience who has found steady employment through a series of odd jobs.

"He comes in every day and finds something. We get excellent reports back from his employers. But I am not surprised. 'We find that those people who are the most energetic seeking work will also be the best employees on the job.'"

Wittchen said some young people have, in effect, formed little companies offering their services to a number of regular customers as gardeners.

Householder jobs are the main opportunities available for students, along with the replacement work that will become available, soon, he said.

The Student Canada Manpower office at 2653 Douglas has about 200 young people coming in daily studying an average of 80 posted jobs.

The office has an active file of 3,000 looking for work and estimates that there are at least 3,000 other young job-hunters in the city.

Of the 1,200 jobs that will become available for young people in July and August, about 600 will be handled through the Student Canada Manpower office, Wittchen said.

Householders with jobs to offer can phone the office at 388-3458. Job-hunters, however, should come in rather than phone, Wittchen said.

"People who are really serious about finding work come in at least once a day. Sooner or later they find something."

Public Kept in Dark on Broadmead?

The public is being kept in the dark about a massive shopping centre planned for the Broadmead area, Bill Neilson, president of the Broadmead Ratepayers' Association, said Monday.
He told Saanich council his group and adjacent communities "want everything on the table and out in the open."
"We want to see the details of negotiations between developers, members of council and municipal staff."

He said there have been too many secret meetings and complained his association has not received any information about the proposal which would see The Bay and Broadmead Farms Ltd. combine to build a 400,000-square-foot shopping centre. It would be the largest on Vancouver Island.

"Given the present state of information and analysis we are forced to take a critical and apprehensive stance," he said.

During the council meeting, two letters from The Bay were received and filed.

One letter noted traffic engineering studies relating to the development of the 35-acre site are "well advanced" but gave no details and suggested a schedule of timing which mentioned Sept. 26 as the date for a public hearing.

The other letter referred to the completion of a retail marketing study by an independent group which "confirmed our own research ... that the site is optimally located for a regional shopping centre." Details of the study were not released.
The letter also noted negotiations are under way with Eaton's for a store at Broadmead, and targeted the opening of the new Bay store by 1980-81 and Eaton's a year later.

Council unanimously decided against any action on the shopping centre proposal at this time but assurances were given that the matter will be reviewed by the lands, planning and housing committee on Aug. 23.

HOT READING AT LIBRARY

Some like it hot, but not as hot as it gets in the new Nellie McClung library at Cedar Hill and McKenzie.

Seems the designers forgot a few things, like cross-air ventilation and how to dissipate the heat from the sun's rays streaming through a large skylight in the roof.

On sunny days everybody sweaters. It was so bad Friday—with the thermometer hitting 90—the library closed early.

A month ago Saanich municipality asked the library's architect to work out a solution and on Monday council learned what it entailed.

Three things could be done, the architect said. A film could be applied to the skylight to cut down the penetration of the sun's rays. A separate switch could be put in to turn off the lights near the skylight during the daytime. And new windows could be put in that would open and allow ventilation.

Council appeared only lukewarm to the final item with an anticipated bill of $4,296, but agreed to authorize spending up to $4,000.

The matter passed without heated debate.
